Property Tax Idea Attacked

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State lawmakers, determined to do something about skyrocketing property taxes, have been accused of plunging "into a mad rush to escape irate taxpayers and find a scapegoat for past government errors."

The charge came Monday night from a varsity lobbying team of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, incensed about a proposed constitutional amendment to establish a special lower tax rate for owner-occupied homeowners.

Ronald F. Budzik, chairman of the chamber's subcommittee on real property taxation and manager of state and local taxes for the Mead Corp., Dayton, testified before the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

He and other Columbus-based chamber lobbyists charged that the amendment would destroy "one of the finest systems of real property taxation in the nation, and effectively end any hope that Ohio can reverse the decline in its manufacturing jobs and tax base."

Sen. John T. McCormack, D-31 Euclid, the amendment sponsor, denied Budzik's allegation that business and industry are being singled out as the target for discriminatory taxation. His amendment, he said, is designed to empower the legislature to pass laws to give a break to elderly and middle class homeowners who have flooded the Statehouse with protest mail in recent weeks.

The committee deferred action on the proposal.

McCormack and a cosponsor, Sen. Robert D. Freeman, D-29 Canton, said privately that while they anticipated some objections to their amendment in the legislature, they plan to take it directly to the people on a statewide ballot if necessary.

Freeman, who also said he has been inundated with mail from taxpayers, predicted an easy campaign to collect enough signatures — probably around 300,000 — to put the amendment on the June 8 ballot.

"I could collect 35,000 signatures in Stark County alone," he said.

Their proposal is one of several now at various stages of consideration in the Senate and House, and Gov. James A. Rhodes has before the board of tax appeals an administrative rule change, expected to be acted upon favorably later this week, to freeze property tax valuations at their Jan. 1, 1975, levels.

Many fear the governor's proposal would be unconstitutional, however, violating the existing constitutional mandate for all real property in Ohio to be taxed at a uniform rate.

Ohio counties have been undergoing property tax reappraisals in groups since the start of a statutory, six-year reappraisal cycle in 1972. Those already reappraised would not get the benefit of the Rhodes' freeze as now written.

Aside from those proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee tentatively scheduled a vote late today on a bill that would spare real estate taxpayers year-to-year increases resulting from inflated property values by providing a system of tax credits.

The House last week approved and sent the Senate a bill to give a five-year tax discount to homeowners for improvements they make to their property.

Another proposal, approved by the House and pending in the Senate, would reduce assessments for industries paying the tangible personal property tax.

Licensing Bill Pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Although Summit County already does it, the Senate voted 27-0 Monday night to permit counties to license electrical, heating, and air conditioning contractors.

Sen. David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, said his bill puts into the statute a practice already followed in his county without the knowledge, until recently, that it lacked authority.

He said the county has even gone further, licensing contractors on behalf of other local subdivisions, including townships. His bill now goes to the House.

By an identical 27-0 vote, the Senate added its approval to a House bill that clarifies the requirement for convicted felons to be transferred to prison within five business days after being sentenced.

The Senate, which returns from weekend a day earlier than the House, received a new bill that would let candidates for judge in Ohio include political affiliations on ballots if they chose. Judicial candidates now list their names on the ballot without stating political affiliations.

State Office Tower Cash Showdown Set

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic legislators have set Thursday for a showdown on mounting problems embroiling the financially plagued State Office Tower.

Majority Democratic members of the State Controlling Board balked Monday at a Rhodes Administration request for a $10 million transfer from the General Revenue Fund to pay private contractors for completed construction work. The budgetary maneuver was proposed because of a cash shortage caused by state's postponement last week of a $60 million capital improvements bond sale.

The entire chain of events is traceable to the debt-ridden 44-story office tower and its financial guardian, the Ohio Building Authority.

Gov. James A. Rhodes said the building's financial condition was so shaky that a bond sale could endanger the state credit rating. He called on the General Assembly to appropriate $12 million to bail out the building authority which oversees the tower's debt.

"I admit this does not solve the problem of financing the State Office Tower," Budget Director-designate William W. Wilkins said in presenting the administration request. "It only addresses the problem for the current biennium."

Wilkins said the $10 million would go for building projects already completed at 37 Ohio colleges and universities.

"If indeed all of our problems are predicated on the Ohio Building Authority's financial dilemma," asked Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, "wouldn't it be more appropriate for some immediate confrontation with the OBA problem?"

The board decided it would and shelved the Rhodes request at least

Susan Ford Heads To New Hampshire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokeswoman says Susan Ford is cutting short her skiing vacation in Vail, Colo., to join her parents in campaigning in the New Hampshire primary Feb. 7-8.

Spokeswoman Sheila Weidenfeld quoted the President's 18-year-old daughter as saying she was returning early because the New Hampshire primary is "the first primary, it's an important time for my family, and I wanted to be there with them."

until the special Thursday meeting.

Before leaving the subject, Meshel, the Senate's majority whip, castigated Rhodes for "a very great disservice by proclaiming to the world that the State of Ohio has fiscal problems." The reference was to Rhodes' recommendation to put off the bond sale.

Control Board President Robert Howarth, who represents Rhodes on the watchdog finance panel, defended the governor's action: "One ounce of uncertainty means we ought to get out of the bond market."

Rhodes has said the eventual sale on the bonds will hinge on whether the legislature agrees to appropriate the $12 million.

PPG Industries Appeals Tax Valuation

The Ohio Board of Tax Appeals completed two days of hearings on the appeal filed by PPG Industries, Inc. in which they asked the Board of Tax Appeals to overrule the Pickaway County Board of Revision's decision assigning a value of $2,233,280 to the local PPG plant and land. PPG had claimed the value to be $1,477,000. Prosecuting Attorney Richard L. Gerhardt appeared and represented the Board of Revision comprised of Dick Tootle, chairman of county commissioners; Robert Wood, county treasurer; and Margaret Remy, county auditor.

At the beginning of the hearing PPG withdrew its appeal of the Board of Revision's value on the land and proceeded only on the question of the plant value. Pasquale A. Sorge of Manufacturers Appraisal Company of Philadelphia, Penn., testified in behalf of PPG and Michael W. Gaund of Cole-Layer-Trumble Company of Columbus, testified in behalf of the Board of Revision.

Gerhardt noted that the evidence presented by PPG at the hearing on the plant appraisal was $330,600 higher than their original value claimed. This, when combined with the withdrawal of the appeal on the land value, had the effect of conceding to the Board of Revision $374,850 of $756,280 difference originally appealed.

A final decision from the Board of Tax Appeal is not expected for several months.

Postal Service Cutbacks Seen Without Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service says it will have to cut back on some services, including Saturday mail delivery, unless Congress is willing to back the mails with the taxpayers' cash.

"We cannot continue to operate as now structured without additional appropriations from Congress," Richard F. Gould, the service's top financial officer, said Monday.

Gould commented before the Senate Post Office Committee opened hearings today on the financial situation of the Postal Service.

Postal Service officials are expected to warn the committee that failure to offer new subsidies will force an end of Saturday delivery and other service such as special delivery.

The committee is taking up a bill by Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., to double the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy over the next three years.

When Congress reorganized the old Post Office Department into the Postal Service in 1971, one of the goals for the new agency was financial self-sufficiency. The law provided for phasing out of subsidies and empowered the Postal Service to manage its own finances independently of Congress.

But the Postal Service has lost money every year since then. Last fiscal year, the deficit was a record $989 million and the Postal Service expects to lose $1.5 billion in the current fiscal year that ends June 30.

Despite some economy measures already taken, "we face the prospect of never having revenues in balance with our costs," said Gould, senior assistant postmaster general for finance.

Although the Postal Service increased the cost of mailing a first-class letter from 10 to 13 cents last month, the extra revenue is not enough to cover steadily increasing costs, Gould said.

Congressional sources said it would be difficult to get higher postal subsidies approved by Congress. The House twice voted down increases last fall, and President Ford opposes any increase.

As major reasons for the Postal Service's financial condition, Gould cited general inflation and the added cost of labor under contracts that call for cost-of-living increases, a decline in usage of the mails and the lengthy procedure for raising postal rates.

CIA Chief Admits Exposing Agency Links To Newsmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid charges and countercharges over the leakage of intelligence secrets turned over to the House intelligence committee, CIA director William E. Colby has acknowledged that he too was once an anonymous source for a newspaper story exposing CIA contacts with journalists.

Colby and other Ford administration officials accused the House panel Monday of violating its oath by disclosing topsecret intelligence operations contained in the committee's final report which was to be released this Friday but which was leaked to the news media over the weekend.

"The committee seems neither able to keep secrets nor its agreement," Colby told a news conference in one of his last official acts as head of the CIA.

Meanwhile, the Senate is expected to vote today to confirm former Republican national chairman George Bush as Colby's successor at the CIA. Also, former CIA director Richard M. Helms, currently under investigation by the Justice Department for his role in past agency misdeeds, is scheduled to testify before the Senate Government Operations Committee on legislation that would create a new panel to monitor the intelligence community.

FBI director Clarence M. Kelley told the committee Monday that the establishment of such a committee could jeopardize the bureau's investigative work.

Colby acknowledged in an interview Monday that he had revealed to the Washington Star in November 1973 that the agency had some three dozen

Utility Bill Criticized By League

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio Municipal League spokesman says a House bill revising the formula for calculating utility rate request data is more favorable to the utilities than present law.

Richard M. Fanelli, public utilities director of the City of Akron and chairman of the league's energy task force, referred to a bill bearing a vote in the House Insurance, Utilities, and Financial Institutions Committee.

In a prepared statement, Fanelli told the committee that the pending measure would repeal existing statutes traditionally relied upon by Ohio's cities to fix utility rate for gas and electric utilities.

The bill replaces the existing "RCN" rate formula with a so-called fair value formula which includes construction work in progress in the value of utility property upon which a new rate would be determined. Under RCN (reconstruction costs new, less depreciation), the utilities use what it would cost to replace existing equipment at current value.

Fanelli said Ohio's consumers would be better protected if the bill, in its present form, were defeated because a utility "could ignore the legitimate concerns of locally elected officials, a situation that is clearly detrimental to local consumers of gas and electric services."

American journalists working abroad on its payroll.

Colby said the question was raised by a Star staffer during a meeting he was having with the newspaper's editorial board. Colby said he "couldn't be in a position of telling them something false" and so he responded affirmatively to the question.

During the interview and a later news conference Monday, Colby also: —Denied a statement in the House committee's report that the CIA manipulated the British-owned Reuters news agency. Colby accused the panel of distorting a hypothetical reference to Reuters and said the name was raised for the hypothetical discussion by someone on the committee, not himself.

—Said he doesn't know of any pornographic films made by the CIA other than "Happy Days," a phony film reportedly produced to make President Sukarno of Indonesia angry with the Soviet Union.

According to sources, the House committee report says Sukarno was caught in a sexual affair in Russia and the CIA made a film — using an actor — purportedly showing him in an embrace. The film was to have been distributed in Indonesia in a way that

Gag Order Issued In Cincinnati Probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gag order was issued in the case of a Columbus, Ohio publisher and evidentiary arguments were scheduled for six policemen seeking reinstatement of pay in separate developments in the scandal probe of the Cincinnati police department.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William Morrissey Monday barred court clerks from releasing any prosecution evidence to newsmen in the cases of Larry Flynt, publisher of the "Hustler" magazine and owner of a Cincinnati bar by the same name, and Flora Griffith Flynt.

Their attorneys argued that release of forthcoming bills of particulars in the cases would damage their chances of fair trials.

Similar reports on the cases of suspended Police Chief Carl Goodin and six indicted officers were released last week by Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr.

The bills, detailing evidence which led to indictments, were requested by defense lawyers, Leis said. Leis said the bills were "public record."

Flynt was indicted on charges of bribery in supplying prostitutes for police officers in return for lack of enforcement of liquor violations. He was named in a separate indictment with Flora Griffith Flynt on a charge of sodomy.

Fraternal Order of Police attorney Donald Hardin asked the court to order acting Police Chief Myron Leistler and city officials to release evidence against the indicted policemen to the defense today.

Hardin said the officers need to know the nature of departmental investigation information against them to defend themselves before the Cincinnati Civil Service Commission.

The officers are seeking reinstatement or reinstatement of pay while their cases are in litigation. All were suspended Dec. 17 when indictments were returned against them by a special Hamilton County grand jury.

Hardin said Leistler refused to divulge evidence against the officers in dispositions taken last week. Hardin said the men were suspended without being informed of charges against them, other than indictments had been returned.

Patty Hearst Trial Jurors Questioned

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's long-awaited trial for bank robbery was to begin today under tight security, with jury selection likely to focus on attitudes toward kidnap victims, radicals and the wealthy.

Miss Hearst, meanwhile, was described by one of her attorneys, Albert Johnson, as "apprehensive as anyone in her position would be" as the trial approached.

Authorities said all spectators would be required to pass through a metal detector similar to those used at airports. As in all pretrial hearings, federal marshals were ordered stationed at every entrance to the 19th floor courtroom and to patrol the aisles inside.

The stage was set Monday when opposing attorneys submitted lengthy lists of proposed questions for prospective jurors to U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter. Following standard federal procedure, Carter, instead of the lawyers, will question potential jurors.

Miss Hearst, 21-year-old daughter of newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army Feb. 4, 1974, and later proclaimed allegiance to the tiny band of terrorists. She was charged with helping the SLA rob a bank here in April 1974.

She was arrested here last Sept. 18 after a nationwide hunt.

The defense contends she was forced to make a tape saying she had joined the SLA and another recording admitting she robbed the bank of her own free will. Her lawyers say she participated in the robbery out of fear that the SLA would kill her if she failed to cooperate.

The defense said it wanted jurors asked how they would feel if their own daughters were converted to radical militancy. They indicated they also wanted to uncover hidden prejudices against wealthy or financially secure people.

Defense attorneys have said part of their strategy will be to show Miss Hearst was brainwashed into joining the SLA. Along this theme, they wanted jurors asked: "Do you have any concern or worry that your daughter could be influenced to join a militant group?"

The government indicated that it would attempt to eliminate jurors who may regard the defendant with sympathy because she was kidnapped.

House Expected To Vote Ban On American Aid To Angola

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House is expected to join the Senate and vote a ban on continued military aid to Western-backed factions in the Angolan civil war.

The issue is scheduled to be raised when the House takes up the $90-billion defense appropriation bill today. That bill contains a Senate-approved amendment to prohibit U.S. funds from being used for the fighting in the southwest African nation.

Appropriations Committee Chairman George Mahon said he expects the amendment to be approved by the House today "by a wide margin."

In another development, Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., said Monday that he had 200 cosponsors to a resolution advising President Ford not to aid any military faction in Angola unless the Congress specifically approves such assistance. Bonker said he considered the support for his resolution indicative as to how the vote on the funds will go.

The administration has included $28 million in the defense appropriations bill for support of the Western-backed National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) and its ally, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA). The Soviet Union has been supplying arms, and Cuba has sent men, to the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

A fund cutoff would affect only direct appropriations to Angola. Bonker has voiced concern that U.S. funds could be channeled through Zaire for use in continued support of the anti-Soviet factions.

Monday, the State Department's assistant secretary of state for African affairs, William E. Schaefele, told the House International Relations Committee that U.S. efforts to aid the two Angolan factions were a response to Soviet and Cuban military intervention.

"We must recognize that the Soviet Union has strained the fabric of detente by its lack of restraint and unilateral actions in Angola," he said. "We were not hostile to the MPLA before it decided to impose its rule on the strength of Soviet and Cuban bayonets."

Schaefele described Angola as a demonstration by the Soviet Union as to how it will use what he said was power only recently gained "to intervene militarily anywhere in the world...."

"If we allow the Soviet Union to get away with this intervention 8,000 miles from its borders" Moscow will be encouraged to try similar forays elsewhere in the world, Schaefele told the committee.

Department Suspends Liquor Permit

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control Commission has suspended the liquor permits of Palm's Sales, Inc., 475 E. Main St., for 21 days, effective Feb. 16 and ending Mar. 8.

According to information from the ODLC, Palm's was in violation of the law by selling beer to a minor July 18, 1975.

A second violation of furnishing beer to a minor was dismissed.

Nathan Frankel, owner of Hanley's Cafe, 112 E. Main St., filed an application Jan. 22 for transferral of permit D-5 to a new location, Nate's Disco, 126 W. Main St.

PLO To Intensify Guerrilla Activities

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization threatened to intensify its armed struggle against Israel following an American veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an independent state in Palestine for the Palestinians and Israeli withdrawal from all territory it occupied in the 1967 Six-Day War.

The 15-nation council ended a two-week debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute Monday night with a 9 to 1 vote in favor of the resolution. But the lone negative vote was cast by the United States, as expected, and constituted a veto.

Britain, Sweden and Italy abstained, while China and Libya did not participate in the voting on the ground that the resolution was not hard enough on Israel. Voting for the resolution were France, Japan, the Soviet Union and the six cosponsors: Guyana, Pakistan, Panama, Romania, Tanzania and Benin (Dahomey).

Immediately after the vote, the United States and several other countries issued statements in an attempt to dispel any idea that a new Middle East crisis was imminent. They pledged continuing efforts to achieve an Arab-Israeli settlement.

But Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim warned the council that it would soon face "new deadlines which, in the absence of progress toward a settlement, can only bring on a new situation of crisis." He was referring to the expiration on May 31 of the authority for the U.N. buffer force between the Syrian and Israeli armies on the Golan Heights. Syria's price last November for extension of the mandate for the force was the council debate and the PLO's participation.

The PLO claimed a political victory on the basis of the support voiced for its cause during the two-week debate.

"We shall go back confident, as we have always been, that the Arab masses will further increase their moral and material support to our armed struggle," said Farouk Khadoudi, guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat's chief political aide.

Another PLO spokesman, Basil Aql, told a reporter the organization would now consult friendly countries on the next step to take while intensifying its armed struggle.

The American veto was the 143rd in U.N. history and the 13th by the United States. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the council it was cast because the proposed resolution would have altered the framework of Arab-Israeli negotiations "in ways that would have been seriously harmful to the future of the peacemaking process."

The United States — and Israel — opposed the resolution because it would have altered the guidelines for a settlement laid down by council resolutions No. 242 voted at the end of the 1967 war and No. 338 after the 1973 war.

Israel, which boycotted the debate because the PLO participated, said the U.S. stand was "an important contribution toward stability in the Middle East and to the promotion of the process of negotiation and peacemaking efforts."

CIA Chief . . .

made it appear to be peddled by Russian agents.

—Confirmed that Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., once gave the CIA advice on how to try to avoid testifying at a Senate hearing on Chilean activities. He called Jackson's action "perfectly appropriate."

—Declined to confirm the House committee report's statement that the CIA supplied weapons to Kurdish rebels in Iraq at the order of President Richard M. Nixon despite the agency's opposition to such a step. Colby said in such situations "the fact that a general doesn't agree with an order doesn't relieve him of the responsibility of carrying it out."

—Acknowledged the report's finding that some weapons given to Angolan factions were listed at one-third of their price but he said this was in keeping with U.S. policy on excess weapons and that the low valuation was on only a small part of the U.S. aid to Angola.

—Said the recent leaks of secrets turned over to the House Committee and other congressional panels have brought CIA effectiveness to a new low point. "I had thought about early December we had managed to get through a year of investigation ... without really indicating that we could not protect some important secrets," Colby said. But, "right now we're about as low as I can think with this enormous leakage of all the material we gave to the House committee."

—Called the House report "a partial, sensationalized, biased view." When the first revelation of CIA wrongdoing occurred more than a year ago, Colby said he failed to anticipate the "sensationalized character that would be given to the few CIA misdeeds that we had."

Meanwhile, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said the leaks of the House report raises "serious questions about how classified material can be handled by Congress when the national security is at stake."

Power Outage Hits 50,000 Ohio Homes

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A faulty high voltage electrical transmission line was blamed Monday for knocking out power in 50,000 west-central Ohio homes.

Homes in Greene, Fayette and Highland counties were affected for about an hour when a substation was put out of commission, the Dayton Power & Light Co. said.

Power was restored to nearly all the communities involved within an hour, but the town of Jeffersonville in Fayette County was without power for about five hours, a DP&L spokesman said.

"We still don't know what happened," he said. "It may be that a switch burned out."

A company spokesman said that in all about 150,000 persons were involved.

"They all were cold," he said. "Even gas furnaces need an electric fan to push the warm air."

Temperatures hovered around the freezing mark during the day and dropped as it grew dark.

More than 10 per cent of the company's customers were affected, he said.

The most homes affected were in the Fayette County seat, Washington Court House, population 12,500, the company said. Other towns and cities affected included Jamestown, Shawnee Lake and Cedarville, Leesburg, Sabina and Greenfield.

The Robinson Road substation in Washington Court House was knocked out at 4:04 p.m. when trouble developed in a 69,000-volt transmission line, the spokesman said. Power to all the communities except Jefferson was restored by 5:10 p.m.

Workmen rerouted transmission lines around the substation to return power to the affected areas. Workmen's efforts were hampered in Jeffersonville because the power lines were off the insulators, he said.

Gag Order Issued In Cincinnati Probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — A gag order was issued in the case of a Columbus, Ohio publisher and evidentiary arguments were scheduled for six policemen seeking reinstatement of pay in separate developments in the scandal probe of the Cincinnati police department.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William Morrissey Monday barred court clerks from releasing any prosecution evidence to newsmen in the cases of Larry Flynt, publisher of the "Hustler" magazine and owner of a Cincinnati bar by the same name, and Flora Griffith Flynt.

Their attorneys argued that release of forthcoming bills of particulars in the cases would damage their chances of fair trials.

Similar reports on the cases of suspended Police Chief Carl Goodin and six indicted officers were released last week by Hamilton County Prosecutor Simon Leis Jr.

The bills, detailing evidence which led to indictments, were requested by defense lawyers, Leis said. Leis said the bills were "public record."

Flynt was indicted on charges of bribery in supplying prostitutes for police officers in return for lack of enforcement of liquor violations. He was named in a separate indictment with Flora Griffith Flynt on a charge of sodomy.

Fraternal Order of Police attorney Donald Hardin asked the court to order acting Police Chief Myron Leisler and city officials to release evidence against the indicted policemen to the defense today.

Hardin said the officers need to know the nature of departmental investigation information against them to defend themselves before the Cincinnati Civil Service Commission.

The officers are seeking reinstatement or reinstatement of pay while their cases are in litigation. All were suspended Dec. 17 when indictments were returned against them by a special Hamilton County grand jury.

Hardin said Leisler refused to divulge evidence against the officers in dispositions taken last week. Hardin said the men were suspended without being informed of charges against them, other than indictments had been returned.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization threatened to intensify its armed struggle against Israel following an American veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for an independent state in Palestine for the Palestinians and Israeli withdrawal from all territory it occupied in the 1967 Six-Day War.

The 15-nation council ended a two-week debate on the Arab-Israeli dispute Monday night with a 9 to 1 vote in favor of the resolution. But the lone negative vote was cast by the United States, as expected, and constituted a veto.

Britain, Sweden and Italy abstained, while China and Libya did not participate in the voting on the ground that the resolution was not hard enough on Israel. Voting for the resolution were France, Japan, the Soviet Union and the six cosponsors: Guyana, Pakistan, Panama, Romania, Tanzania and Benin (Dahomey).

Immediately after the vote, the United States and several other countries issued statements in an attempt to dispel any idea that a new Middle East crisis was imminent. They pledged continuing efforts to achieve an Arab-Israeli settlement.

But Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim warned the council that it would soon face "new deadlines which, in the absence of progress toward a settlement, can only bring on a new situation of crisis." He was referring to the expiration on May 31 of the authority for the U.N. buffer force between the Syrian and Israeli armies on the Golan Heights. Syria's price last November for extension of the mandate for the force was the council debate and the PLO's participation.

The PLO claimed a political victory on the basis of the support voiced for its cause during the two-week debate.

"We shall go back confident, as we have always been, that the Arab masses will further increase their moral and material support to our armed struggle," said Farouk Khaddumi, guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat's chief political aide.

Another PLO spokesman, Basil Aql, told a reporter the organization would now consult friendly countries on the next step to take while intensifying its armed struggle.

The American veto was the 143rd in U.N. history and the 13th by the United States. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan told the council it was cast because the proposed resolution would have altered the framework of Arab-Israeli negotiations "in ways that would have been seriously harmful to the future of the peacemaking process."

The United States — and Israel — opposed the resolution because it would have altered the guidelines for a settlement laid down by council resolutions No. 242 voted at the end of the 1967 war and No. 338 after the 1973 war.

Israel, which boycotted the debate because the PLO participated, said the U.S. stand was "an important contribution toward stability in the Middle East and to the promotion of the process of negotiation and peacemaking efforts."

CIA Chief . . .

made it appear to be peddled by Russian agents.

Confirmed that Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., once gave the CIA advice on how to try to avoid testifying at a Senate hearing on Chilean activities. He called Jackson's action "perfectly appropriate."

Declined to confirm the House committee report's statement that the CIA supplied weapons to Kurdish rebels in Iraq at the order of President Richard M. Nixon despite the agency's opposition to such a step. Colby said in such situations "the fact that a general doesn't agree with an order doesn't relieve him of the responsibility of carrying it out."

Acknowledged the report's finding that some weapons given to Angolan factions were listed at one-third of their price but he said this was in keeping with U.S. policy on excess weapons and that the low valuation was on only a small part of the U.S. aid to Angola.

Said the recent leaks of secrets turned over to the House Committee and other congressional panels have brought CIA effectiveness to a new low point. "I had thought about early December we had managed to get through a year of investigation ... without really indicating that we could not protect some important secrets," Colby said. But, "right now we're about as low as I can think with this enormous leakage of all the material we gave to the House committee."

Called the House report "a partial, sensationalized, biased view." When the first revelation of CIA wrongdoing occurred more than a year ago, Colby said he failed to anticipate the "sensationalized character that would be given to the few CIA misdeeds that we had."

Meanwhile, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said the leaks of the House report raises "serious questions about how classified material can be handled by Congress when the national security is at stake."

ALCOHOL: The New Teen-Age Turn-On

Alcohol: What Is It Really?

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
And BRIAN SULLIVAN
SEVENTH IN A SERIES

From Bacchus, the Roman god of wine, to Falstaff, Shakespeare's great comic figure, to the actor W. C. Fields, drinking has had some striking symbols, literary and real. Far less well known is just what alcohol is and what it does.

It's simply a chemical compound, although a remarkable one, called ethyl alcohol or ethanol. In the chemists' language, it's C₂H₅OH.

Alcohol is a naturally occurring chemical, the product of fermentation, or the action of yeast on plant sugars. Because of this, most authorities believe that ancient man came upon alcohol by chance, that yeast spores could have acted on a store of berries or fruit lying in a warm place to produce the first wine.

Once discovered, man probably took to deliberate fermentation of beer and wine, a practice that began in prehistoric times and has continued since and throughout most of the world without interruption.

In the 15th century, the process of distillation was developed, enabling man to produce drinks with much higher concentrations of alcohol. The beer and wine was limited to about 14 per cent alcohol by natural processes. Distillation allowed 50 per cent or more alcohol content.

In the United States, most beer contains about 4 per cent pure alcohol, while ordinary table wines contain up to 14 per cent. Ports or sherries, or dessert wines, are fortified, producing an alcohol content of up to 21 per cent.

The distilled beverages, vodka, gin, rum, brandy and rye, bourbon and Scotch whiskeys usually contain 40 to 50 per cent pure alcohol. The amount of "proof" seen on the label is twice the pure alcohol strength; 80 proof is 40 per cent alcohol, 100 proof is 50 per cent.

For most liquors, one ounce from the bottle contains about a half-ounce pure alcohol. It takes the body about an hour to burn up the alcohol in a one-ounce drink.

The flavors differ, however. Gin is alcohol flavored with juniper berries. Whiskeys are made from grains such as corn, barley and rye. Rum comes from molasses. Vodka, considered tasteless and odorless, is usually from corn, other cereals, and potatoes.

What the alcohol does is go immediately into the bloodstream and directly to the brain, the central nervous system.

A martini or a straight shot of liquor gets there fastest. But when the liquor is diluted, the absorption is slowed. Water is the best mix; alcohol diluted with water is absorbed most slowly. Carbonated mixes such as club soda or gingerale induce faster absorption than water.

In addition to a wide variety of effects on the body, alcohol has the mysterious capability of causing intoxication.

"Yet, incredible as it may seem, there is no generally accepted explanation of how alcohol induces intoxication," says a government-

sponsored special study called "Alcohol and Health."

"The gap in knowledge about this basic effect of alcohol on the brain handicaps treatment and, possibly, prevention."

Movies On The Menu

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE

NEW YORK — What do Robert Redford, Jacqueline Onassis, millionaires and top-ranking Mafia boss often do in the evening - for after-dinner entertainment - that most of us ordinary never do? (The answer is not X-rated.)

What these people do, after a nice evening meal, is to retire to an adjoining, private screening room and see a movie. We watch "Sanford and Son" on a small TV screen with dishwashing and commercial breaks. They watch "Barry Lyndon" on a big silver wall, interrupted only by servants bearing brandy. This inequity in viewing habits long has intrigued a young man named Ernest Bogen, whose friends include those with their own screening rooms.

"I always look forward to those private showings in the home after dinner because," said Bogen, "as a movie buff, I consider it the height of luxury living." He couldn't afford to put in his own private screening room (who can?), so he dreamed up an idea called "Movie Dine" — a film version of the dinner theater concept which is sweeping the country.

He provides movies and projectionists to high-class restaurants which, in turn, offer patrons a chance to sit back after their meal and view a major film — "with a drink in their hand and a waiter at their elbow" — at no extra cost over the dinner charge.

"It's the closest most of us can come to seeing a film at a private screening," Bogen believes, and if it catches on around the country, as it is catching on in St. Louis, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington (his introductory "Movie Dine" cities), he may be able soon to afford his own private theater.

The concept of after-dinner movies is so old that it's actually news. Before the turn of the century in this country, films were often shown in restaurants where guests relaxed in comfort and enjoyed the latest "one reeler" with friends over food and drink. The movies became big business, and theaters were built, and restaurants lost the trade.

In 1976 — a year of nostalgia and also of economic problems for restaurateurs — why not revive the early tradition? "It helps the restaurants by picking up their business," says Bogen, "and making profitable use of banquet rooms which otherwise would be dark on slow week nights . . . and it pampers the public, who no longer has to fight traffic, scrounge for parking space and stand in line for tickets, to see a good movie."

In addition to the areas already showing "Movie Dine," listed above, new restaurants will begin the policy soon in Cleveland, Tampa, Kansas City, Miami and Columbus. By the end of the year, Bogen expects there will be between 300 and 500 cinematic eateries in operation.

In most cases, the price-fixed dinner, including the film, is about $8.00; drinks, of course, are extra. And it is the bar business, along with the increased patronage, which helps restaurateurs pay the $175 nightly fee for a first-rate movie with big screen, portable projector and affable, experienced projectionist. "Our projectionists are distinguished," says Bogen. "We have all kinds, from ex-deans of private schools to the guy who owned the stadium in Cuba where the Dodgers used to train."

Besides operating the equipment at "Movie Dine" restaurants, these men act as local "distributors" in their individual cities. It is they who assemble a basic complement of five good restaurants in each area, which are interested in putting in a film-dinner one night a week — and then coordinate the schedules, logistics, publicity and advertising and, finally, take charge of the collapsible projection booth at each performance. No two restaurants may show "Movie Dine" on the same night in any city, so there is no competition; and none of the films can be too violent or too offensive. "Not on a full stomach," says Bogen with a grin.

The dinner-movie concept is aimed at middle-class, middle-aged Americans who occasionally like to go out to a good restaurant but rarely bother to wrestle with the young people for seats at a movie theater. "Demographically," says Bogen "our audience is in their mid-40s and the kind of people who say they 'haven't been to a movie in six months.' Their ideal film would be something like 'A Touch of Class,' though they might go as far into R-ratings as 'Lenny.' They also like some classics, but don't want to go for X-rated entertainment." And, most of all, they like to feel luxurious.

That becomes clear when one looks at the hundreds of questionnaires filled out by patrons in the first month of "Movie dine" operations. The only objections were that the seats should be deeper and softer . . . like those of Robert Redford, Jacqueline Onassis, millionaires, et al.

Firm Enjoyed From Practices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A California-based company has been enjoined from violating Ohio laws against deceptive advertising, the attorney general's office said Monday.

The Sam Nasi Co., which conducts liquidation sales in Ohio and elsewhere for W.T. Grant Co. was accused of misrepresenting amounts and availability of savings in out-of-store advertising.

The order was issued by Franklin County Common Pleas Court.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 27, the 27th day of 1976. There are 339 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1880, Thomas Edison received a patent for his electric incandescent light.

On this date—

In 1756, the Austrian composer, Mozart, was born in Salzburg, Austria.

In 1808, the National Geographic Society was founded in Washington.

In 1944, the Russian city of Leningrad officially celebrated liberation from the Nazis.

In 1964, France recognized Communist China.

In 1939, the black singer, Marion Anderson, gave a recital at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington after being barred from Constitution Hall because of her color.

In 1967, U. S. astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee died in a flash fire in their space capsule at Cape Canaveral.

Ten years ago: The United States proposed a seven-point program for halting the spread of nuclear weapons.

Five years ago: The African nation of Uganda charged that Tanzania was preparing an attack, and Uganda's army was put on alert.

One year ago: The U. S. Senate voted 82 to 4 to create a special committee to investigate the F.B.I., C.I.A. and other government intelligence agencies.

Today's birthdays: Admiral Hyman Rickover is 76. Publisher William Randolph Hearst Jr. is 68.

Thought for today: Within the first few months I discovered that being President is like riding a tiger. A man has to keep on riding or be swallowed — President Harry Truman, 1884-1972.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, General George Washington wrote to General Benedict Arnold outside Quebec, saying of Canada that if it falls into American hands, "success, I think, will most certainly crown our virtuous struggles."

Legion Leader Blasts Russians

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Harry G. Wiles, national commander of the American Legion, says the Soviet Union is using detente as a means to an end.

"There is no question that the Russians' stated position is that they want to take over the Western World," Wiles told a news conference Monday while attending the mid-winter conference of the Ohio Legion. "And if the discrepancy between their strength and ours continues to widen, the chances of conflict certainly increase."

In the event of a war, Wiles, 59, an attorney from Topeka, Kan., said the legion doubts that a volunteer army could produce enough men quickly in a time of conflict.

Wiles also said: "It's all right to have communications with the Chinese, but I don't think we should trust them any more than the Russians."

Unusual bleeding or discharge are conditions that should not be ignored. If you have either one, see your doctor, urges the American Cancer Society.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

After an automobile injury, it was found that I had a fracture of the jaw. I can't understand why it was allowed to heal by itself rather than to have it set. Now the insurance company just dismisses my injury as if nothing happened.

Mr. B.P., Minn.

Dear Mr. P.:

There are many medical and legal implications to your problem. From the medical point of view, it is important for you to understand that not all fractures of the jaw need to be "set" by an operation.

Frequently, the fragments of the broken bone are in good position and in normal alignment. When this occurs, the jaw may be put at rest in a variety of ways. Then, the bones heal without any alteration of function.

If a fracture of a jaw affects the jaw joint and interferes with its movement, surgery may be necessary.

When the alignment of the teeth and the bite are altered by a fracture then special wiring techniques are also used to put the bone in its normal position.

Fortunately, you were spared such complications and the need for surgery.

The fact that an operation was not needed should not in any way alter the legal and insurance obligations associated with such an injury.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1974 private pension act makes the future income of workers more secure but it has created a dilemma for some investment advisers, one that some of them feel can be resolved only by the courts.

The confusion centers on the interpretation of prudence, the use of which any fiduciary — that is, a handler of other people's money — must be able to demonstrate. But how do you prove prudence?

You'll find this requirement way back in the common law. For many years it meant simply that the fiduciary must manage other people's affairs in the same way a prudent man would handle his own affairs. It was the golden rule.

Then society became institutionalized. The affairs of trusts and pension funds, which hopefully will go on "forever," must be managed differently than the affairs of individuals. The "prudent expert" became the measure.

But even the experts can't figure out how to interpret the introduction of another factor by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act. Prudence, it maintains, dictates that pension funds also must be adequately diversified.

What does adequate diversification mean? Fiduciaries say they are puzzled.

There is "confusion but not exasperation," said Jerome Valentine, president of the Financial Analysts Research Foundation and vice president of Texas Commerce Bank, Houston. While defending the high standards of ERISA, he still believes "everyone will operate in great doubt."

You may say at this point that you'll just let the experts worry about it. But it concerns you more vitally, because it's your money that's involved and it might be your pension funds that brings the clarifying court case.

As often applied, the prudent man rule means that a fiduciary may show prudence by defending the individual companies in a portfolio as having been selected wisely and responsibly.

Now that diversification is called for, that interpretation might change, but nobody knows in what way. "It's good that the law doesn't tie us down, but bad in that we don't know how the courts will interpret it," said Valentine.

Modern portfolio theory, as practiced by many trust departments, pension funds and other fiduciaries, maintains that risk is a factor of the overall character of a portfolio, not

I have a swelling in my neck. This has been growing larger. The doctors say it is a goiter and should be removed. If I decide not to have an operation can this growth become cancerous?

Mrs. N.K., Iowa

Dear Mrs. K.:

The condition you describe is probably a "colloid" goiter. It occurs with moderate frequency to people who live in areas where there is little natural iodine in the water.

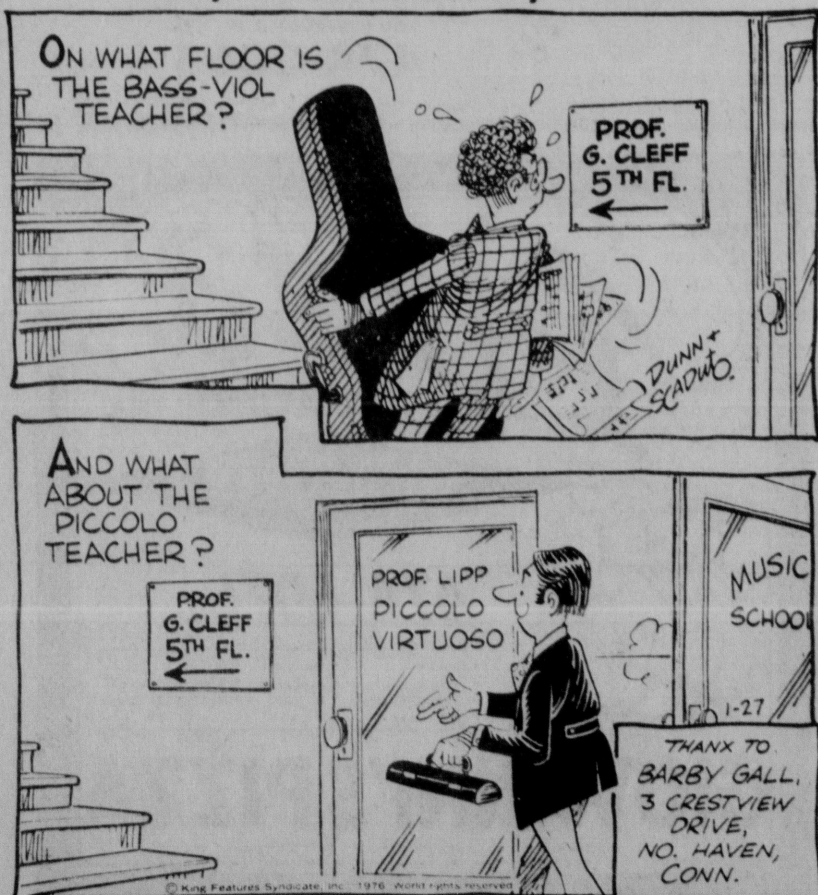

When iodine is added to salt and to water there is a marked reduction in the incidence of goiter.

Very rarely there are cancerous change in a colloid goiter. Yet such a possibility does exist. Consequently, it strikes me as being unwise not to take your doctor's advice.

The surgical removal of a colloid goiter is not a complicated operation. It can be performed safely and will eradicate once and for all the unnecessary fears you speak of.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . When called upon to help a victim of an accident, or in any other emergency situation, it is better to do too little than too much. Everyone should be trained at an early age in the fundamentals of first aid.

Fats, Oils Production Sets Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — World production of fats and oils this year is estimated at a record of 48.6 million metric tons, up 6 per cent from calendar 1975, including larger output of certain items which will mean stiffer competition for U.S. soybean producers, according to the Agriculture Department.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said that key factors in the larger 1976 fats and oils production include:

—A near-record U.S. soybean crop which will provide 23 per cent more oil than the reduced 1974 harvest.

—More Brazilian soybeans, which will contribute 20 per cent more oil.

A 28 per cent increase in oil from a larger peanut crop in India.

—About 15 per cent more palm oil from major producers, including Malaysia and other tropical countries.

Of the total, U.S. fats and oils production this year — which include animal fats as well as oil from oilseeds — is expected to account for more than 11.5 million tons and foreign countries nearly 37.1 million tons. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

Exports of U.S. fats and oils are expected to total 4.25 million tons this year, only a slight increase from 4.1 million in calendar 1975 and still substantially below the 5.2 million tons exported in 1974, the agency said.

The net effect of rising world production is that the United States will no longer be "the only store on the block" when it comes to importing countries shopping for fats and oils.

Infiltration Of Groups Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly released documents from the Central Intelligence Agency's "Operation Chaos" show that the agency infiltrated dissident political groups at three universities in the United States in 1970 and 1971.

The groups infiltrated included the Young Socialist Alliance, the youth affiliate of the Socialist Workers party.

The heavily censored papers, comprising 141 pages, are the first "Operation Chaos" files to be released.

The documents were made public over the weekend by the Political Rights Defense Fund, which represents the Socialist Workers party in a multimillion-dollar damage suit against the CIA and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The files were released to the fund in response to a court order in connection with the suit.

The Socialist Workers charge the agencies with illegal harassment.

Also, the CIA has released to Socialist Workers party leader Peter Camejo less than half of its dossier on him after he requested it under the Freedom of Information Act. The agency said the rest of the material in his file is exempt from disclosure under the act.

A previously released CIA memo, dated in 1973, seven months before "Chaos" was reported to have been terminated, said the operation was "restricted to the collection abroad of information on foreign activities related to domestic matters."

Interviewed Sunday on NBC News, CIA Director William E. Colby said the end of Operation Chaos "doesn't mean the end of all counterintelligence."

Wallace Hits 'Ripoffs' And School Actions

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace says the federal government can save billions of dollars by eliminating welfare "ripoffs" and billions more by curtailing foreign aid.

And, he says, unless Congress clamps a ceiling on federal spending in general, the nation's economy itself will do it because "the money won't be there."

But he does not give figures on any of these points, and, indeed, says through an aide that he doesn't have any.

Wallace, campaigning again for the Democratic presidential nomination, argues that the federal government has grown too big and has spawned a bureaucracy which, he says, has grown "stronger than the executive and the Congress itself."

He says some of its functions should be turned back to local authorities, particularly the control of "our democratic institutions such as the schools." Aside from schools, he did not specify which functions he would turn back.

Federal intervention in schools is an old theme with the Alabama governor, who gained prominence battling federal school integration orders with the battle cry "segregation forever." But he has muted his segregationist image.

He criticizes forced busing, but no longer does he advocate school segregation. He says that it is a thing of the past, a way of life in the South that will not return, Wallace solicits the support of black voters.

In his campaign — his fourth for the presidency — he stresses opposition to the intervention of the federal courts in the lifestyle of the people.

When a federal judge recently ordered major reforms in Alabama prisons, the governor charged that "thugs and federal judges are about to take over our society."

On ways to save federal money, Wallace charged in an interview that welfare checks and benefits from other "humanitarian" programs are being paid to hundreds of thousands not entitled to federal aid.

When he was asked for specific figures and detailed proposals, the only response came from Billy Joe Camp, his chief spokesman, who said the figures would be worked out as the campaign progresses.

Wallace says that there should be tighter eligibility requirements and constant monitoring of all relief programs to stop cheating.

"Many of the programs that we have instituted now in this country that were meant to be purely humanitarian have turned out to be ripoffs," he said.

Again, he provided no specifics.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in a study of the $16-billion aid for dependent children program, estimated that errors cost the government about $1 billion annually. The report said that about half was due to administrative errors by states and counties. It blamed the rest on errors by individuals. HEW officials could provide no specific figures on the number of intentional cheaters in the latter group but said the number was extremely small.

He said the United States should never agree to an arms reduction "unless we can be absolutely sure through adequate inspections that the agreements would not be violated and that the Soviet Union would not use the agreement to take advantage of us, which, in my judgment, it has already done."

The governor said Russia is exploiting détente by increasing its military strength while getting grain shipments and technological assistance from the United States.

Wallace said he would continue to talk with the Soviet Union on arms limitations "because I think it would certainly be healthy for all of us if we would come to some agreement that was a genuine agreement to reduce the arms race."

In the Middle East, he said he is in "complete agreement with the continuous effort on the part of the United States to use its good graces to try to persuade both sides that there should be some give and take."

The governor said the United States should negotiate with the oil-exporting countries and use its "great efficiency in agriculture," not for "extortion purposes" but for bargaining on energy. The United States in 1975 sold about $1.7 billion worth of farm products to the OPEC nations, about 8 per cent of U.S. farm exports.

Wallace said he would emphasize to the OPEC nations that higher oil prices "are not helping the development of the third and fourth worlds, which they themselves are vitally interested in and which they in the past have really been a part of."

Wallace said there is no "short-haul" solution to the energy crisis in the United States, but that much can be accomplished by voluntary conservation. That, he said, "hasn't been emphasized enough."

He said completion of the Alaskan pipeline will give some relief, and he recommended construction of a second pipeline "if the reserves, as I now understand it, would warrant."

According to government estimates, North Slope Alaska oil reserves total about 45 billion barrels. The current pipeline will carry about two million barrels a day. Another, presumably, could double that capacity.

Along with that, Wallace suggested stepped-up offshore drilling on the outer continental shelf.

Estimates of offshore oil reserves vary widely, with some guesses ranging up to 190 billion barrels.

Wallace urged a long-range research program to make maximum use of solar energy.

But "the big answer, he said, is coal. He said the nation has enough coal to meet its energy needs and help make it independent.

If elected president, he said he would stop "the elitist cult in this country" from trying to run the people's lives.

"I am one," he added, "who would never apologize for this nation and try to bare our breast and say we've been bad." And he said, "I would give them hope in that they know that I believe in the work ethic and there's not something for nothing, and the only way that we can get ahead is to work and strive."

Mr. Dave Port, organist, and Mrs. Steve Johnson, vocalist, presented a program of nuptial selections preceding the wedding.

For her wedding the bride selected a silk organza full length gown in candlelight ivory over English net and taffeta. The bodice featured a high neckline with a ruffled edge and an alencon lace yoke with ruffled edge and empire waistline. Alencon lace enhanced the front of the gown and cuffed the sheer sleeves ending with ruffles and tiny buttons. The chapel length train was bordered with matching lace and ruffles and the tiny buttons were repeated down the back.

The bride's three tiered veil of illusion, bordered in lace flowed softly to fingertip length. She carried a cascade bouquet with a large white orchid with lavender throat surrounded with white roses, stephanotis and English ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Lynda Rhome, and bridesmaids, Miss Cindy Thompson, Miss Barbara Cox and Miss Sylvia Herrel, were gowned alike in turquoise crepe jersey formal length gowns. The bodices featured jeweled necklines with V-inset, soft gathers and cinched above the waist and tied with a bow at the back. They carried lavender orchids with deep purple centers surrounded by stephanotis and English ivy.

Miss Karyn Youngkin was flower girl and Master Kevin Youngkin, the ring bearer.

Mr. Stan Nolte served as best man and ushers were Mr. Don Youngkin, Mr. Ron Youngkin, Mr. Ted Giese, Mr. Harold Bickle, Mr. Mike Longdon, Mr. Mike Perry, Mr. Bob Swift and Mr. Brian Nichols.

The bride's mother was attired in a light pink crepe jersey shirtwaist gown with rhinestone buttons. The mother of the bridegroom chose a light blue crepe gown with sheer sleeves. Corsages for both mothers were of lavender orchids.

A reception in the learning center building of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The bride's table was draped in an ivory linen cutwork table cloth. The wedding cake covered with ivory icing was decorated with pastel colored fruits and flowers. A gold punch bowl and matching accessories completed the table decorations.

Hostesses were Miss Kathleen Bauman, Miss Tedde Richardson, Mrs. Bill Priebe, Mrs. Gerald Oliver, Miss Hope Coleman, Miss Kathy Huffman, Miss Barbara Smith, Miss Candee Carver, Miss Julianne Allison and Mrs. Ted Giese.

The bride received a BS degree at Texas Woman's University and MA from the University of Texas in Austin. She is employed by Dallas Independent School District where she is a teacher of child development at Adamson High School.

The bridegroom graduated from Teays Valley High School, Ashville, Wartburg College in Iowa and Dallas Theological Seminary. He is employed as associate pastor of the Fellowship Bible Church.

The couple will reside at 404 Lowell Lane, Richardson, Texas.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Don Youngkin, Circleville; Mrs. Dorothy Taes and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Youngkin, Ashville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bickle, Columbus, Ohio.

Society Begins 1976 Meetings With New Officers

Christian Women's Missionary Society of Northridge Church of Christ met recently in the Fellowship Hall with 13 members present.

Mrs. Marge Bergen presided over the business session, beginning with prayer. Mrs. Bennie Sherrick led devotions using Hebrews 4: 12-19. The theme selected for 1976 is "Love." Dale Wilkinson and family, Christian missionaries serving in Japan, were selected for the mission of the year.

Discussion included sending flowers to persons who are hospitalized, taking prepared meals to persons who are ill and sending greeting cards. Secret sisters were revealed and names drawn for the present year. The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Yvonne Myers.

The remainder of the evening was spent in fellowship. Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. Bergen, Mrs. Jo Ellen Osborn, Mrs. Mary Rhoades, Mrs. Nelva Kasler and Mrs. Bennie Sherrick, officers for the 1976 club year.

The next meeting will be held 7:30 p.m., Feb. 10, at the church with Mrs. Beverly Speakman and Mrs. Nellie Miller as hostesses.

MRS. MARTIN FREDERICK YOUNKIN

For her wedding the bride selected a silk organza full length gown in candelight ivory over English net and taffeta. The bodice featured a high neckline with a ruffled edge and an alencon lace yoke with ruffled edge and empire waistline. Alencon lace enhanced the front of the gown and cuffed the sheer sleeves ending with ruffles and tiny buttons. The bride's three tiered veil of illusion, bordered in lace flowed softly to fingertip length. She carried a cascade bouquet with a large white orchid with lavender throat surrounded with white roses, stephanotis and English ivy.

Maid of honor, Miss Lynda Rhome, and bridesmaids, Miss Cindy Thompson, Miss Barbara Cox and Miss Sylvia Herrel, were gowned alike in turquoise crepe jersey formal length gowns. The bodices featured jeweled necklines with V-inset, soft gathers and cinched above the waist and tied with a bow at the back. They carried lavender orchids with deep purple centers surrounded by stephanotis and English ivy.

Miss Karyn Younkin was flower girl and Master Kevin Younkin, the ring bearer.

Mr. Stan Nolte served as best man and ushers were Mr. Don Younkin, Mr. Ron Younkin, Mr. Ted Giese, Mr. Harold Bickle, Mr. Mike Longdon, Mr. Mike Perry, Mr. Bob Swift and Mr. Brian Nichols.

The bride's mother was attired in a light pink crepe jersey shirtdress gown with rhinestone buttons. The mother of the bridegroom chose a light blue crepe gown with sheer sleeves. Corsages for both mothers were of lavender orchids.

A reception in the learning center building of the church immediately followed the ceremony. The bride's table was draped in an ivory linen cutwork table cloth. Hostesses were Miss Kathleen Bauman, Miss Tedde Richardson, Mrs. Bill Priebe, Mrs. Gerald Oliver, Miss Hope Coleman, Miss Kathy Huffman, Miss Barbara Smith, Miss Candee Carver, Miss Julianne Allison and Mrs. Ted Giese.

Rain Sweeps Over East; Plains Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Rain hit the East today, as clear skies and cold temperatures covered the Plains and warm weather spread across the Northwest.

Rain fell throughout the Atlantic Coast states, in the central and southern portions of the Appalachians and over Alabama.

Dense fog with visibilities near zero in some places extended from New England to Virginia making travel extremely hazardous early today.

The spread of relatively mild air over New England has brought an end to the freezing rain that plagued the area Monday.

However, colder air produced some snow over Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and in the northern portion of Michigan.

Clear skies and cold temperatures spread across most parts of the Plains and Mississippi Valley today. Temperatures dropped below zero from the eastern Dakotas into Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

The mercury also approached the freezing mark in parts of Southern Texas.

But warmer temperatures gradually moved into the northwestern and west central Plains along with some cloudiness.

Partly cloudy conditions prevailed over the northwestern states with rain in Western Washington.

Mostly clear skies with seasonable temperatures dominated the Southwest.

The Rev. David Cyrus is the pastor of the church.

Patients Said In Voluntarily

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than half of the patients in Ohio institutions for the mentally ill are in voluntarily, the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation says.

At the end of March 1975, 19 per cent of the patients were in on a voluntary basis compared to 55 per cent at the beginning of this year.

The patient population has decreased from 8,801 to 8,366 during the period.

Sanford Pushes Jobs-For-All Plan

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford is pushing a jobs-for-all proposal as the keynote of his Democratic presidential campaign, saying the government should provide work for any American who can't find it otherwise.

But he acknowledges he'd have to settle for a more limited, less expensive plan at the outset. And he does not have specifics on how he would finance even a limited jobs program, although he says budget deficits are inevitable until full employment is reached.

Sanford, 58, was called one of the first of the New South governors when he steered a moderate course for North Carolina in the racially turbulent days of 1961-65. State law barred a second term.

Four years later, he became president of Duke University. He kept his hand in Democratic politics and staged a late and unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination in 1972.

Sanford has characterized his full employment policy as a radical alternative to the "immoral and counterproductive" policies of the Ford administration, which he accuses of trying to fight inflation by putting people out of work.

He believes that full employment — a job for everyone who wants to work — should be the overriding goal of federal economic policy. He says he favors making government the employer of last resort, using federal grants to state and local governments for projects like railroad bed improvements and environmental protection construction.

When pressed for specifics, Sanford said his initial goal would be more modest than such a sweeping guarantee of jobs. He said he would ask for $7 billion in federal job money in the first year, which he estimated would provide jobs for about 10 per cent of those currently unemployed.

(The Labor Department reported an unemployment rate of 8.3 per cent during December, with 7.8 million Americans unable to find jobs. Ten per cent of this figure is 780,000 and $7 billion works out to an expenditure of almost $9,000 per person, a figure economists generally say is reasonable for the cost of creating a job.)

Sanford did not say how he proposes to come up with the $7 billion, but he said that federal budget deficits are inevitable until there is full employment.

He also said the defense budget could be pared. Sanford thinks $15 billion could have been cut from the President Ford's recommended defense budget for fiscal 1976. Sanford said the cuts could be made "not by drastically eliminating programs, but by going through it line by line and cutting out the fat."

(Ford proposed a defense budget of $94 billion; Congress has not yet approved a final defense spending plan, but legislation now pending provides for cuts of about $7.5 billion in Ford's requests, half of what Sanford would have cut.)

Old-Fashioned Bake Shops Alive, Well

CINCINNATI (AP)—The old-fashioned bake shop is alive and well, thanks to some newfangled ideas that include 'Sesame Street cakes' and creations which range from whiskey-shaped cakes to hamburger buns the size of half-dollars.

"They said that when boxed cakes came out, that would be the end of the small bakery," said Max Meeker, who runs a pastry shop in Defiance, Ohio and who was one of 275 bakers attending the Ohio Bakers Association convention here. "It just hasn't happened. My customers can come in and order what they want and know they'll get it, just like that."

"I can make hamburger buns no larger than a 50 cent piece, or I just recently baked a loaf of bread that was seven feet long. I do what they want me to do."

Meeker's customers often want him to do more than the traditional. Where once a simple 'Happy Birthday' scrawled in creamy script across a white-icing cake would have sufficed, now customers are demanding more.

Many parents now help their children celebrate birthdays by ordering purple-frosting cakes sculpted in the fashion of the 'Cookie Monster' or 'Big Bird' of TV's 'Sesame Street.'

The association's piece de resistance during its 69th convention which ended Monday was a bicentennial tribute. A 250-pound cake-map of the United States was on display with two additional cakes on either side.

Meeker admits that he has to keep up with the cultural, as well as the culinary, tastes of his customers. These tastes vary widely.

"Every baker has a cake which shows a woman lying on a bed," he admitted. "Of course, you don't usually put those cakes right out front because you might offend somebody."

Meeker has also had requests to build cakes around whiskey bottles, and he has decorated cakes for parties of all kinds.

Even wedding cakes are sometimes different than they used to be, Meeker explained. Bakers used to create a

Rain Sweeps Over East; Plains Cold

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain hit the East today, as clear skies and cold temperatures covered the Plains and warm weather spread across the Northwest.

Rain fell throughout the Atlantic Coast states, in the central and southern portions of the Appalachians and over Alabama.

Dense fog with visibilities near zero in some places extended from New England to Virginia making travel extremely hazardous early today.

The spread of relatively mild air over New England has brought an end to the freezing rain that plagued the area Monday.

However, colder air produced some snow over Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and in the northern portion of Michigan.

Clear skies and cold temperatures spread across most parts of the Plains and Mississippi Valley today. Temperatures dropped below zero from the eastern Dakotas into Wisconsin and Northern Illinois.

The mercury also approached the freezing mark in parts of Southern Texas.

But warmer temperatures gradually moved into the northwestern and west central Plains along with some cloudiness.

Partly cloudy conditions prevailed over the northwestern states with rain in Western Washington.

Mostly clear skies with seasonal temperatures dominated the Southwest.

Sanford Pushes Jobs-For-All Plan

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford is pushing a jobs-for-all proposal as the keynote of his Democratic presidential campaign, saying the government should provide work for any American who can't find it otherwise.

But he acknowledges he'd have to settle for a more limited, less expensive plan at the outset. And he does not have specifics on how he would finance even a limited jobs program, although he says budget deficits are inevitable until full employment is reached.

Sanford, 58, was called one of the first of the New South governors when he steered a moderate course for North Carolina in the racially turbulent days of 1961-65. State law barred a second term.

Four years later, he became president of Duke University. He kept his hand in Democratic politics and staged a late and unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination in 1972.

Sanford has characterized his full employment policy as a radical alternative to the "immoral and counterproductive" policies of the Ford administration, which he accuses of trying to fight inflation by putting people out of work.

He believes that full employment — a job for everyone who wants to work — should be the overriding goal of federal economic policy. He says he favors making government the employer of last resort, using federal grants to state and local governments for projects like railroad bed improvements and environmental protection construction.

When pressed for specifics, Sanford said his initial goal would be more modest than such a sweeping guarantee of jobs. He said he would ask for $7 billion in federal job money in the first year, which he estimated would provide jobs for about 10 per cent of those currently unemployed.

(The Labor Department reported an unemployment rate of 8.3 per cent during December, with 7.8 million Americans unable to find jobs. Ten per cent of this figure is 780,000 and $7 billion works out to an expenditure of almost $9,000 per person, a figure economists generally say is reasonable for the cost of creating a job.)

Sanford did not say how he proposes to come up with the $7 billion, but he said that federal budget deficits are inevitable until there is full employment.

He also said the defense budget could be pared. Sanford thinks $15 billion could have been cut from the President Ford's recommended defense budget for fiscal 1976. Sanford said the cuts could be made "not by drastically eliminating programs, but by going through it line by line and cutting out the fat."

(Ford proposed a defense budget of $94 billion; Congress has not yet approved a final defense spending plan, but legislation now pending provides for cuts of about $7.5 billion in Ford's requests, half of what Sanford would have cut.)

Old-Fashioned Bake Shops Alive, Well

CINCINNATI (AP) — The old-fashioned bake shop is alive and well, thanks to some newfangled ideas that include "Sesame Street cakes" and creations which range from whiskey-shaped cakes to hamburger buns the size of half-dollars.

"They said that when boxed cakes came out, that would be the end of the small bakery," said Max Meeker, who runs a pastry shop in Defiance, Ohio and who was one of 275 bakers attending the Ohio Bakers Association convention here. "It just hasn't happened. My customers can come in and order what they want and know they'll get it, just like that."

"I can make hamburger buns no larger than a 50 cent piece, or I just recently baked a loaf of bread that was seven feet long. I do what they want me to do."

Meeker's customers often want him to do more than the traditional. Where once a simple "Happy Birthday" scrawled in creamy script across a white-icing cake would have sufficed, now customers are demanding more.

Many parents now help their children celebrate birthdays by ordering purple-frosting cakes sculpted in the fashion of the "Cookie Monster" or "Big Bird" of TV's "Sesame Street."

The association's piece de resistance during its 69th convention which ended Monday was a bicentennial tribute. A 250-pound cake-map of the United States was on display with two additional cakes on either side.

Meeker admits that he has to keep up with the cultural, as well as the culinary, tastes of his customers. These tastes vary widely.

"Every baker has a cake which shows a woman lying on a bed," he admitted. "Of course, you don't usually put those cakes right out front because you might offend somebody."

Meeker has also had requests to build cakes around whiskey bottles, and he has decorated cakes for parties of all kinds.

Even wedding cakes are sometimes different than they used to be, Meeker explained. Bakers used to create a

Dear Abby:

Child's 'Leash' May Be Lifesaver

DEAR ABBY: May I please respond to INDIGNANT MOTHER, who tried to justify placing her child in a harness to save him from being lost or run over, or falling down a flight of stairs? A child should be taught-not leashed! To defend using a harness by saying it's for the child's protection is a cop-out used by parents who are too lazy or busy to look after their own children. There is no substitute for a mother's personal attention.

Of course, unkind remarks from strangers are out of place, but someone should open the eyes of mothers who put leashes on children. Maybe the mothers should put them on THEMSELVES and be walked through the stores and airports for their "protection." Adults also get lost, run over and fall down stairs.

I say, God giveth and God taketh away, harness or no harness.

UNLEASHED IN OKLAHOMA
DEAR UNLASHES: Please read on for another point of view.

DEAR ABBY: This is for INDIGNANT MOTHER, who was frequently subjected to insults from strangers because she used a harness on her 2-year-old child.

I, too, used a harness, and a plain, old-fashioned dog leash on my two children when they were toddlers. They were 11 months apart in age and quite a handful. While I worked in the yard or hung my clothes outside, I'd clip their harnesses to the clothes line so they could run and play within safe limits.

While shopping with my harnessed youngsters, I collected many cold stares from strangers. Some even reminded me that I was raising children-not dogs.

Then, something happened that made it easier for me to bear those insults. A beautiful, 2-year-old neighbor girl was killed. Two minutes earlier, she was beside her mother in the kitchen. There was one broken-hearted mother, one dead child and one unsuspecting driver who didn't see the wee curly head dart from between two parked cars until he felt the thump of a wheel go over her little body.

That was 25 years ago. Today I am the mother of two living children and six grandchildren, and I thank God that He gave me the intelligence to value the lives of my children above the criticism of a few "know-it-alls."

Indignant mother, forget your indignation and rock your living baby to sleep. Keep him harnessed until he's old enough to understand simple danger. It's much better than carrying flowers to a small grave.

MRS. O.K. IN VA.
DEAR ABBY: Bravo to the mother who uses a harness on her small child! Many mothers don't use one because they are afraid of appearing "cruel."

As a physical therapist, I have treated many small children for dislocated shoulders caused by impatient parents who have literally pulled their children's arms out of their sockets holding onto their hands in traffic.

A dislocated shoulder can go undetected for a long time while causing much damage and discomfort.

Westfall Board Talks Of Finances

In a continuation of its regular monthly meeting, the Westfall Board of Education convened Monday night to discuss school expenses. The board passed a resolution to borrow $75,000 to meet the current operating expenses.

This amount along with the February State Foundation money should see the district through to the middle of February. At that time, it is hoped the board will be able to make advanced draws on the local taxes.

In other action, the board approved renewal of liability insurance from the Republic-Franklin Insurance Firm for the five board members.

Representatives from the Kellam and Smith Architects and Contract Management Company were present at the board meeting to discuss the remaining work to be done on the construction of the new middle school.

One day of professional leave was granted to James Kibby to attend the Music Educators Convention in Columbus on Feb. 6 and 7.

The board adjourned to meet again in regular session at 8 p.m. on Feb. 16.

It was either too warm or too cold in parts of Ohio to please safety officials Monday, but a cold front moving across the state today promised to solve at least part of their problems.

Temperatures in the upper 50s Monday in the Ohio River Valley were blamed for fog that caused a chain reaction collision involving seven trucks and five cars. Police in the Columbiana County town of Wellsville said five persons were injured, two seriously.

Police in Willoughby Hills exploded dynamite to break up ice jams in the Chagrin River, which was threatening to flood homes along the riverbank. Some residents were evacuated from their homes Monday, but most returned Monday night.

Police in Amherst planned to blast jams in Beaver Creek later in the night, and the Army Corps of Engineers planned to start dynamiting today near the mouth of Rocky River to break up jams which had raised the river level five feet. Medina County sheriff's deputies also planned to dynamite Rocky River near Valley City.

Brisk west to northwest winds pushing temperatures into the teens today should alleviate problems near the river, authorities said. The forecast was for clear skies tonight to force temperatures into singledigit figures.

Fired Teamster Agent Sentenced

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fired Teamsters business agent James R. "Shoes" McNicholas, will report in two weeks to start a five-year prison term for extorting $5,000 from a businessman for "labor peace."

McNicholas, 44, pleaded guilty Dec. 15 to the charge in U.S. District Court and was sentenced Monday by Judge Timothy S. Hogan.

Albert E. Grogan, owner of the Continental Mineral Processing Co., Sharhenville, Ohio, said he made the second payment to McNicholas Oct. 29, the same day FBI agents arrested McNicholas in a motel parking lot.

McNicholas was fired by Teamsters Local 100 President Gerald Kiser after McNicholas pleaded guilty.

The prosecution said Local 100 organized 14 employees at the firm last February and struck the firm Sept. 4, 1975. Picketing continued until Oct. 24.

Pros Hurt Church Bingo Take

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Church-operated bingo games are being put out of business by professional gamblers who give away bingo prizes such as automobiles and Las Vegas vacations, the legislature has been told.

The testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee came mostly from Catholic priests and other representatives of the Cleveland Diocese. They are seeking prompt action to implement a constitutional charitable bingo amendment, adopted by voters last fall.

It makes bingo legal in Ohio for the first time, but limits the games strictly to those designed to make money for charitable purposes. However, testimony from church spokesman said illicit operations continue, attracting players from other states in some cases, and luring players away from church games with exorbitant prizes to games often rigged.

One witness told the committee, which is considering three Senate bills to regulate bingo games, likened bingo players coming long distances to Ohio games to "a school of barracudas." Joseph Sidley, a parishioner from St. Ann's Church, Cleveland, added that they are "not your usual crowd of fun loving, charitable people."

The pending bills, along with similar proposals introduced in the House, headed into a Senate-House subcommittee for further study. They consist of various proposals that include making the books of charitable operations, along with any seeking to "front" as charitable, open to inspection by the attorney general.

Others contain provisions that would limit games to one night a week, and require each operation to give 65 per cent of its proceeds in prizes and another 33 per cent to charity—leaving little to skim off the top.

Still others limit the amount of prizes to $3,000—although some church groups contend limiting prizes would be unnecessary if laws were strong enough to catch and prosecute the unscrupulous.

In a bid to point up the problem with professional gamblers, one bill sponsor, Sen. Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, brought Cleveland Police Capt. Carl Delau to report to the committee that among 57 bingo operations being conducted in his city, 7 are being run by professionals. Delau said Ohio's present laws fail to give police the authority needed to crack down on profiteers.

The Cleveland officer quoted Toledo Police Chief Corrin McGrath as saying that 22 of Toledo's 50 bingo games currently are being run by professionals. Delau said he thinks limiting play to one night a week would help stop the illicit games by making them unprofitable.

Catholic and other church groups say the games enable them to raise money to maintain their financially troubled parochial schools. The Rev. John L. Pzybyliki of Cleveland's St. Ignatious Church said bingo revenue subsidized by his parish's high school to the extent that it permitted a reduction in yearly student tuition from $528 to $100.

LE Girls Cage Team Is Young But Shows Rapid Improvement

“We will have a young ball club but I feel we will be much improved over last year and will have a say in who wins the Mid State League this year.” These were the words of Coach Kathi Thompson as she discussed her 1976 edition of the Logan Elm girls varsity team.

This is only the second year for the Braves girls basketball program but they have been coming along fast and will have to be reckoned with before the season is over.

The 11-member varsity includes four returning varsity lettermen, Terri Ebert, Anette Roof, Diane Martin and Beth Bell.

Reserve letter winners moving up to the varsity are: Teresa Newman, Abby Rife, Tina Woods, Cheryl Hawkins and Shelia Smith.

Tammy Green and Krista Gifford round out the Logan Elm varsity. Terri Ebert and Diane Martin will co-captain the squad.

The team will include two seniors, two juniors and seven sophomores.

Ten teams will compete in the Mid State and coach Kathi Thompson feels Amanda-Clearcreek and Fisher Catholic will be strong contenders while Circleville will be tough in non league competition.

They like to run with the ball and have good attitude and spirit on the team. The Braves have been switching from a zone defense and working hard on developing a tight man to man which coach Thompson feels will be a definite asset to their game.

The girls have been really working in order to catch up with the other county teams as the Mid State has a ruling that they couldn't begin practice until Dec. 15 while the Ohio High School Athletic Association permits the teams to begin practice Nov. 28. This ruling puts Mid State girls teams about two weeks behind the other schools.

Coach Christy Owens has two sophomores and eight freshman on her

reserve team which is also in its second year of play.

Lelia Brown and Debbie Jarrell are the sophomore members while Holly Riddle, Diane Weaver, Jackie Cave, Debbie Calton, Ronna Parker, Janet Newman, Sheri Thomas and Carla Roof are freshmen. Diane Weaver and Jackie Cave are co-captains.

Here is the remaining Logan Elm girls schedule:

3 Unbeatens Head Cage Poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Canton McKinley, Delphos St. John and Gnadenuhnen Indian Valley South are threatening to make The Associated Press' state high school basketball polls their personal domain the entire season.

The three unbeatens are out front again this week, marking the fourth straight time since the first ratings began early in January.

None of the trio shows signs of cracking with four more weeks of ratings remaining before the end of the regular season.

McKinley's Class AAA lead is 36 points over Barborton. St. John is 54 points up on Warsaw River View in Class AA. And Indian Valley South boasts a 62-point margin over No. 2 Morral Ridgedale in Class A.

McKinley is 14-0 this winter and undefeated in its last 31 regular season games. St. John is 12-0 and Indian Valley South 13-0.

The same cast makes up the three Top Tens this week with three exceptions.

Newcomer Springfield South (11-2) moved into No. 10 in Class AAA. There were no new faces among the Class AA elite, but newcomers Lordstown (13-0) and Oak Hill (11-1) shared 10th place among the Class A powers.

In Class AAA, Canton Timken and Cleveland St. Ignatius made the biggest moves. Timken (13-1) went from seventh to fifth on the strength of a 114-54 beating of Western Reserve Academy. St. Ignatius, unbeaten in 13 tests, surged from 10th to seventh.

Among the large schools, Bellefontaine was fourth, Columbus Linden-McKinley sixth, Middletown eighth and Cleveland Heights ninth.

In Class AA, Lorain Catholic held onto fourth, followed by Wellsville, Ironton, Circleville, Wheelersburg, Magnolia Sandy Valley and Columbus St. Charles.

Arcanum jumped one notch to fourth in Class A, Sandusky St. Mary was fifth, St. Henry sixth, New Riegel seventh, Maria Stein Marion eighth and Sebring ninth.

Golden State Beats Milwaukee, 115-104

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rick Barry is upset because he's on another scoring spree, which is about the only thing troubling the runaway Golden State Warriors.

“I'm concerned. I shouldn't have to score that much,” Barry said after collecting 28 points Tuesday night to help the National Basketball Association's defending champions down Milwaukee 115-104 and open an 11½ game lead in the Pacific Division.

The game was the only one scheduled.

The first Kentucky Derby was won by Aristides at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., on May 17, 1875.

CHS Girl Cagers Gain Victory Over Vikings

Circleville's girls cage team hosted Teays Valley Monday night and it turned into a real battle before the Red and Black cagers came up with a 45-42 win over the Vikings.

Teays Valley jumped out to a 10-0 lead in the first period but the Tigers battled back to grab a 12-10 edge at the buzzer.

Circleville was out in front by eight points midway through the second canto but Teays Valley refused to quit and cut the gap to 25-22 at halftime. Darla Hughes, Natalie Martin and Sue Crist played a strong first half for the Red and Black.

Teays Valley came on strong in the third canto and put 13 points on the board while holding the Tigers to six markers to gain a 35-31 margin at the third period buzzer.

But, Hughes, Martin and Crist found the range in the fourth frame to put the Tigers on top late in the period. And despite a strong come-from-behind effort by the Vikings the girls from Circleville held on for the victory.

Martin paced the Tigers with 16 points, Hughes added 13, Crist tallied 10, Sue Stevenson added four and Sue Radcliff had two.

Perry Martin, Reichelderfer and Trego all had 11 for the Vikings, Snoot added six and S. Jones had three.

Circleville was 21 of 60 from the floor for 35 per cent and converted three of 10 from the foul line for 33 per cent.

Teays Valley was 18 of 55 from the field for 33 per cent and hit six of 17 from the charity stripe for 35 per cent.

The Tigers grabbed 36 rebounds with Martin, Hughes, Stevenson and Sue Radcliff getting the job done. Teays Valley hauled in 33 missed shots with Trego, Reichelderfer, S. Jones and Martin grabbing the missed shots.

Circleville committed 36 turnovers and Teays Valley misplayed the ball 33 times.

“Nancy Radcliff and Linda Holveck came off the bench and turned in fine defensive games for us along with Sue Radcliff and all seven girls played great games in what was a team effort victory,” Circleville coach Joy O'Brien commented.

“Martin and Holveck were especially tough on the boards in the late stages of the fourth to help us hold our lead and preserve the win.”

Kelly Steele and Lisa Leahy both suffered injuries over the weekend and did not see any action.

Circleville's reserves topped Teays Valley 20-18 in the opening game.

The Tigers led 8-2, 14-6, 16-10 and 20-18.

Sue Frericks was tops for Circleville with eight points, Vickie Morrison had six, Michelle Nolan tallied four and Tammy Merrill added two. Baxter led Teays Valley with 12 points, Mesner had five and Gray added one.

Both Circleville teams are now 4-0 and will host Logan Elm 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Ray Scott Kicked Out By Pistons

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Scott, the only Detroit Pistons' coach ever to compile a winning record, was fired Monday because of what management described as a communications breakdown.

The National Basketball Association team's general manager, Oscar Feldman, said that breakdown was the reason Scott was fired as coach, not the team's injury-riddled 17-25 season.

Assistant coach Herb Brown, who joined the Pistons staff last summer, will coach the team for at least the rest of this season.

Scott, who was named NBA Coach of the Year in 1974, was notified of his release by Feldman and the major owners during a Pistons practice session at a suburban Detroit high school.

Feldman would not specify the area of the breakdown with Scott. “It was between Ray and the entire organization — management, staff and players ... I don't want to go into specifics. I don't think it would be fair to Ray or the team,” Feldman said late Monday.

The other two club owners are Bill Davidson and Herb Tyner.

Feldman said the remaining portions of Scott's contract would be honored. He was in the second year of a three-year pact.

Scott's relationships with the players, once considered a big part of his success, had deteriorated in the last two seasons.

Last year he had disagreements with Don Adams and Dave Bing. Adams later was cut from the team and Bing was traded at the end of the season.

Logan Elm Girls Lose To Lakers

Logan Elm's girls basketball team, 1-1, dropped their first game of the season when they were stopped, 34-29, by visiting Millersport Monday night.

It was just one of those nights for the Braves as they held a cold shooting hand and just couldn't do anything about it. They only netted nine of 60 shots from the floor for a frigid 15 per cent and were just about the same at the foul line where they managed to convert 11 of 30 for 37 per cent. Millersport was eight of 14 from the charity stripe for 57 per cent.

It was a low scoring first half with the Braves holding a 7-4 lead at the end of the first period and a margin of 11-9 at halftime.

Millersport took a 27-18 lead at the third period buzzer but the Braves refused to give up and battled back before losing by five points.

Beth Bell led Logan Elm with 11 points, Diane Martin had seven, Terri Ebert added five, Anette Roof tallied four and Abby Rife netted two. Theresa Ralston paced Millersport with 12 and Jody Largent added 11.

Logan Elm won the battle of the boards, 56-49, with Bell, Martin and Ebert being the big rebounders.

“We were extremely cold in the shooting department and had a bad third quarter when we went to the foul line for 13 shots and only netted three,” Logan Elm coach Kathi Thompson stated.

“Our girls played good defense and I was proud of the way they battled back in the final period and outscored Millersport even though they couldn't quite pull the game out of the fire,” coach Thompson commented.

Logan Elm reserves were defeated 28-11 by Millersport to run their season mark to 0-2.

Ronna Parker had five points for the Braves, Holly Riddle added four and Lelia Brown added two. Pierce was high for Millersport with 10.

Logan Elm will be at Circleville 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Tiger Frosh Nip Logan Elm, 38-35

Circleville's freshman basketball team edged Logan Elm in an overtime contest, 38-35, Monday on the Braves' court.

The Tigers led 11-10 at the end of the first period and were on top 16-15 at halftime. The Braves grabbed a 23-22 edge at the third period buzzer and it was 33-33 at the end of regulation play.

P. Harrison led Circleville with 12 points, R. Elsea had 10, B. Sealock tallied eight, J. Strawser netted six and K. Woltz netted two.

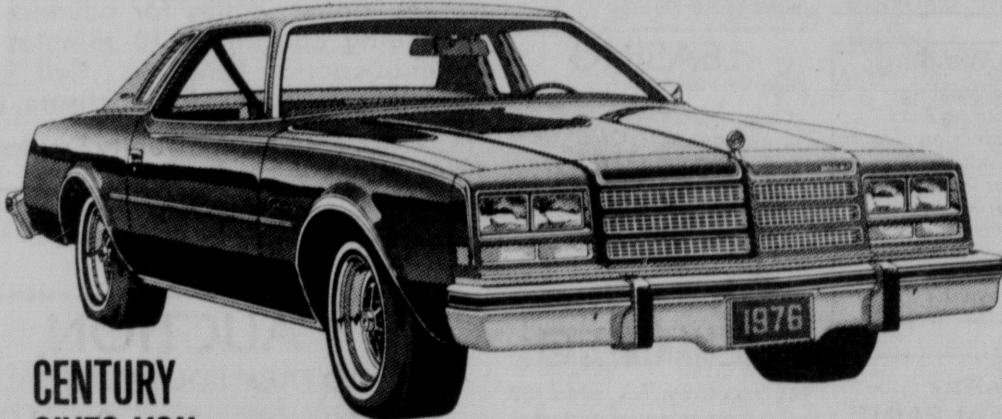

Logan Elm, 5-2, was led by D. Hill with 12 points, T. Wright and B. Hanigan both had eight, Congrove added three while Bruce Hanigan and Vanover each scored two.

“We played a fine defensive game and that was the key to the victory,” Circleville coach Jim Diltz stated.

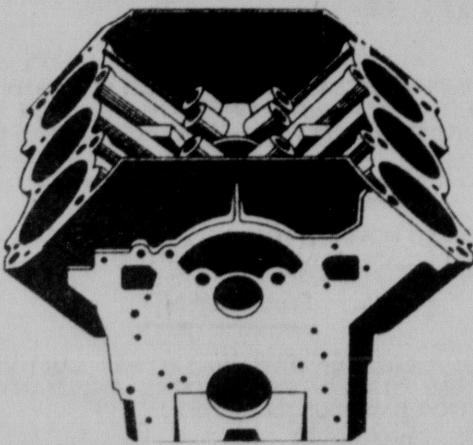

Circleville is now 3-5 and will be at Chillicothe Smith 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

3 Gridiron Greats Join Hall Of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Taylor, Ray Flaherty and the late Len Ford, integral parts of gridiron dynasties in four different decades, have been elected to the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Flaherty coached the Washington Redskins through their most successful era in the late 1930s and early 1940s. Ford, a bruising 250-pounder who was converted from offensive to defensive end, helped the Cleveland Browns to divisional titles seven times in eight seasons in the 1950s.

The 40-year-old Taylor is the most familiar name to the current generation of pro football fans. The powerful fullback played a key role in transforming the Green Bay Packers from National Football League doormats to champions in the 1960s. He retired as the No. 2 rusher and touchdown-scorer in National Football League history with 8,597 yards and 83 touchdowns and holds the record of five consecutive 1,000-yard ground-gaining seasons. Taylor, Flaherty and Ford will be inducted into the Hall of Fame here July 24. "Being named to the Hall of Fame is the ultimate goal of every professional football player," Taylor said in New Orleans, where he does public relations work for a ship-building firm. "But being named at the age of 40 means I'm young enough so that I, my family and friends can really appreciate the honor and enjoy it for a number of years."

Ford, who died of a heart attack in 1972 at the age of 46, launched his pro career in 1948 as a pass-catching end with the Los Angeles Dons of the old All-America Conference. When the AAC and NFL merged in 1950, he joined the Browns and became an all-pro almost every season until his retirement in 1957. "He was probably the finest defensive end in the history of the club," said a Browns' spokesman. Flaherty was an outstanding end in the early years of the NFL. In 11 seasons as the Redskins' coach, his teams compiled a record of 80-37-5. He capped his career by guiding the Skins to a 14-6 upset of the Chicago Bears in the 1942 NFL title game.

After serving in the Navy, Flaherty led the New York Yankees of the AAC to divisional crowns in 1946 and 1947 and later coached the Chicago Hornets. "For a person who has been out of football as long as I have, I'm kind of tickled about it," the 72-year-old Flaherty said at his home in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where he is semiretired.

"I'm very pleased and happy about it. It's the one thing that everybody in football looks forward to. The award is especially nice because this is my 50th anniversary since I began in pro football. That's a long time ago. Not very many people can remember back that far to when I played or coached."

Your Views On Horoscope Television

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Influences favorable in part, but day requires more effort, steady application of your skills and knowledge. Cooperation with right forces vital.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Venus, auspicious, encourages artistic pursuits, romance, domestic interests. Day spells action, determination. Plan wisely.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If you happen to get a late start, pick up your pace as you go along. Your fine mind and quick comprehension of unusual situations should be stimulated now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You can make a bright new place for yourself with a little more diligence and a gracious demeanor. Use a practical arena for trying out ideas before putting them into effect.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just so" may suffer a setback. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until "clouds" lift and you get a better perspective.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Pitch into activities with verve, confidence, your usual know-how. If new propositions are made, however, give them careful study. Don't be caught off guard by surface glitter.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Look for better ways to handle your obligations. There are always improved methods, devices, implements. And YOU can be the one to devise them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Much deep thought should go into this day. There will be proposals and counter-proposals. Do not be swayed by emotionalism or bias. Let good judgment be your guide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Note Scorpio. Your outlook similar. Be careful not to misinterpret others' meanings and not to be misunderstood yourself. Shun mere gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't shift from one plan or activity to another without reason. Don't make promises you can't keep and do not aim for the unreasonable. A day for caution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Review finances, domestic situations, future needs. There may be room for improvement in your plans. If one idea proves unworkable, try another.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Overcome any hesitancy that could prevent you from producing in your usual top form. Aim for special achievement rather than accomplishment by volume.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly intelligent and extremely versatile; can lead successfully or follow adequately. You automatically know the elements for success because you look for real achievement rather than just trying "to get by." You are suited to enterprises catering to people generally. Knowing how to cooperate quietly and willingness to strive for long hours are big factors in your success. Uncertainty and changeability are likely faults; also a tendency toward excessive volubility.

The average human body contains enough fat to make about seven or eight bars of soap.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 per cent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. — 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." The idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All in the Family" to American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide data, which the magazine had sent him as a courtesy.

"The reason I did this was that I looked at the article and laughed at the basic foolishness on which the research was based," Lear was saying the other day after he'd received his man's report.

The conclusion of Lee Christie: "The resounding 'yes' is rather hollow!" What really got Lear was the finding that 58 per cent of the 1,024 persons interviewed had never heard of Family Viewing Time. It was only after the policy was defined for them that the subjects were asked if they favored or opposed it. Then the pro vote was 82 per cent.

"That's like the other side of the 'Do you still beat your wife?' question," said Lear. "What kind of an individual who doesn't know that much about it is going to say they don't like something called Family Viewing Time?"

"They are the same people who would say that they don't like America, they don't like Mom and they don't like apple pie!"

And true enough, Christie's breakdown does show that about 59 per cent of the people who said they approved of Family Viewing Time had admitted not knowing what it was initially. Only 7 per cent of the interview subjects had said they were very familiar with it.

Christie found further evidence of what he said was ignorance and confusion about the policy's impact. For although 82 per cent said they favored the concept as it was defined for them, 69 per cent said they would rather see each family decide for itself what to watch rather than allow someone else to impose stricter control on television content — precisely what Family Viewing Time represents.

Golden Age Seen By Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Golden Age of Sports is now as far as the Cincinnati Reds are concerned.

The Reds' success during the six years of this decade in winning four Western Division titles, three National League championships and a world championship, has literally lined their pockets with gold.

The players who have been with the club throughout this period have averaged nearly $10,000 per year, a total of $56,071.57, in addition to their regular salaries as a reward for their success.

Pluto, discovered in 1930, is the most distant known planet in our solar system. In its 248-year orbit of the sun, Pluto never comes closer than 2,670,000,000 miles to the Earth, National Geographic says.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Influences favorable in part, but day requires more effort, steady application of your skills and knowledge. Cooperation with right forces vital.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Venus, auspicious, encourages artistic pursuits, romance, domestic interests. Day spells action, determination. Plan wisely.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): If you happen to get a late start, pick up your pace as you go along. Your fine mind and quick comprehension of unusual situations should be stimulated now.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You can make a bright new place for yourself with a little more diligence and a gracious demeanor. Use a practical arena for trying out ideas before putting them into effect.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just so" may suffer a setback. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until "clouds" lift and you get a better perspective.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Pitch into activities with verve, confidence, your usual know-how. If new propositions are made, however, give them careful study. Don't be caught off guard by surface glitter.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Look for better ways to handle your obligations: There are always improved methods, devices, implements. And YOU can be the one to devise them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Much deep thought should go into this day. There will be proposals and counter-proposals. Do not be swayed by emotionalism or bias. Let good judgment be your guide.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Note Scorpio. Your outlook similar. Be careful not to misinterpret others' meanings and not to be misunderstood yourself. Shun mere gossip.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't shift from one plan or activity to another without reason. Don't make promises you can't keep and do not aim for the unreasonable. A day for caution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Review finances, domestic situations, future needs. There may be room for improvement in your plans. If one idea proves unworkable, try another.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Overcome any hesitancy that could prevent you from producing in your usual top form. Aim for special achievement rather than accomplishment by volume.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly intelligent and extremely versatile; can lead successfully or follow adequately. You automatically know the elements for success because you look for real achievement rather than just trying "to get by." You are suited to enterprises catering to people generally. Knowing how to cooperate quietly and willingness to strive for long hours are big factors in your success. Uncertainty and changeability are likely faults; also a tendency toward excessive volubility.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear didn't buy it when TV Guide magazine reported last December that a nationwide survey it had commissioned found a whopping 82 per cent of the adult population in favor of television's controversial "family viewing" policy.

That's the plan that restricts TV programming between the hours of 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. — 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. in the Central Time Zone — to material that is "inoffensive to a general family audience." The idea is to reduce the amount of sex and violence on the air.

The magazine's findings must have been a blow to the Writers Guild, Directors Guild and Screen Actors Guild, which have filed suit against the policy on grounds it is censorship and violates the First Amendment. They certainly looked to be in a small minority.

Lear, who brought "All in the Family" to American television and currently supervises production of six other TV comedies as well (including "Maude" and "Good Times"), wasn't convinced. He hired a former MIT and UCLA professor who specializes in testing the validity of other people's surveys to analyze the TV Guide data, which the magazine had sent him as a courtesy.

"The reason I did this was that I looked at the article and laughed at the basic foolishness on which the research was based," Lear was saying the other day after he'd received his man's report.

The conclusion of Lee Christie: "The resounding 'yes' is rather hollow!" What really got Lear was the finding that 58 per cent of the 1,024 persons interviewed had never heard of Family Viewing Time. It was only after the policy was defined for them that the subjects were asked if they favored or opposed it. Then the pro vote was 82 per cent.

"That's like the other side of the 'Do you still beat your wife?' question," said Lear. "What kind of an individual who doesn't know that much about it is going to say they don't like something called Family Viewing Time?"

"They are the same people who would say that they don't like America, they don't like Mom and they don't like apple pie!"

And true enough, Christie's breakdown does show that about 59 per cent of the people who said they approved of Family Viewing Time had admitted not knowing what it was initially. Only 7 per cent of the interview subjects had said they were very familiar with it.

Christie found further evidence of what he said was ignorance and confusion about the policy's impact. For although 82 per cent said they favored the concept as it was defined for them, 69 per cent said they would rather see each family decide for itself what to watch rather than allow someone else to impose stricter control on television content — precisely what Family Viewing Time represents.

TV Board Remunerates Seven Teachers For Course Work

Seven teachers were given remuneration for completed course work by the Teays Valley Board of Education Monday night. The board, in regular session, reviewed those teachers' applications for additional pay for the course work and authorized the clerk to make such payments.

The following teachers were approved for the remuneration: Betty Midkiff, high school; Sharon Downard, Scioto School; Patricia King and Christine Engler, Ashville School; Betty Stir, Scioto School; Joan Gibson and Larry Kirk, high school.

A supplemental contract was approved for Sharon Alford for course work.

Also regarding personnel, the board acted to approve 16 professional leave requests and approved an industrial arts educational experience field trip. Two of the industrial arts teachers will take a busload of students to an industrial arts convention in Cleveland on March 12.

Consideration was given to three requests for the use of the high school building and approval given to the Ashville Jaycees to hold a local tri-skill basketball contest on Feb. 29. The board also approved the Jaycees second request to hold the state tri-skill basketball contest in the high school on March 6 and approved a request from a local church youth group to use the building for a gospel concert on April 17. Each of the groups will pay the required expenses.

A formal resolution was adopted to revise the policy statement for free and reduced price lunches. The board also adopted the calendar for the 1976-77 school year.

Bill Toney and Christine Cole, high school principal and assistant principal respectively, were appointed by the board during the meeting to serve as coordinators for the Title IX program in the district.

The board received a report from the vocational agriculture department regarding the 30-acre corn plot for this past season and also heard reports from each of the principals concerning matters pertinent to the respective schools.

Approval was given to the procedural agreement for negotiations with the teachers organization for the calendar year. According to Benis Lutz, local superintendent, the agreement is basically the same as in previous years.

A resolution was passed to contact the Better Business Bureau with regard to carpet installation at the Scioto School. The board has not found the carpet to be as it should be and the company has refused to make it right.

The board met with the representatives from the Water Systems Company regarding proposed treatment of water at one of the buildings but no action was taken during the meeting.

Action was taken to have specifications drawn up for a grass waterway on the south side of the school property. The board will take action on those specifications at the February meeting and will advertise for bids after that.

A further discussion was held on the need for locating the central office space away from the high school building and the board is still in the process of making contacts on the subject.

The board adjourned to meet in special session on Feb. 9 at 8 p.m. for the purpose of discussing a possible bond issue.

Detroit School Integration Goes Well

DETROIT (AP) — Court-ordered integration of Detroit's schools, begun peacefully with the busing of elementary school children, broadened today as classes resumed in the city's secondary schools.

School officials said the first day of court-ordered busing in Detroit was a success Monday, even though nearly one-third of the pupils stayed home.

But civil rights leaders and school officials acknowledged some concern about the high schools, which in the past have been hit by occasional racial fights and violence.

Detroit is the largest city in the country to undergo court-ordered desegregation, with about 10 per cent of the 247,000 pupils to be bused under the plan. The school system is 75 per cent black.

Many buses were only halffull as they arrived at elementary schools Monday. More than 40,000 elementary pupils were absent.

Supporters of the city's largest antibusing groups kept their children home Monday in an indefinite "yellow flu" boycott. There were no incidents at the schools and only three small demonstrations against the integration program.

School Supt. Arthur Jefferson estimated absenteeism was 32.4 per cent of the city's 127,000 elementary pupils, up from a normal rate of 12.5 per cent.

Foremen Complete Courses

Two employees of USS Chemicals, Circleville, completed Unit II of Wittenberg University's Management Development Program Friday.

They are Everett Keller, 56 Evergreen Ave., shift foreman, and Kenneth R. Welsh, 222 Brinks Drive, foreman.

The series of five-day on-campus courses are designed to strengthen the management competency and provide new insight into the management functions of supervisory personnel in industry.

The courses concentrate in four areas — behavioral studies and motivation, communications and leadership, management functions and methods, and economics and personnel relations.

During the past 24 years more than 900 different companies representing a wide variety of industrial, commercial and medical concerns have released over 16,000 supervisors from their normal responsibilities and sponsored their participation in the management program.

Police Hold Daytonians

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Two Dayton, Ohio brothers, one of them wounded, today remained in custody charged with the early Monday attempted robbery of the Bonanza Sirlain restaurant, Middletown police said.

Larry Miliner, 26, was treated for a shoulder gunshot wound and charged with pointing a sawed-off shotgun at Lt. Ernest Howard and Patrolman Garry Watson.

His brother, Ronald Miliner, 21, was held for aggravated robbery and complicity to felonious assault.

Police said they opened fire at Larry Miliner when he pointed a weapon at them as they responded to a burglar alarm. Ronald Miliner was treated for a head wound. Police said he was struck on the head by an officer while attempting to escape from the restaurant.

Three employees were held at gunpoint during the attempted robbery, police said. An undetermined amount of cash was recovered, police said.

Benefits Urged For Police Widows

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has called on the General Assembly to enact legislation allowing survivors' benefits to the widows and children of slain peace officers.

Rhodes issued the statement as he received petitions from some 4,000 Massillon citizens calling for a crack-down on organized crime.

The petitions were prompted by the deaths of three firemen in a restaurant explosion having links to organized crime. The firemen left three widows and seven children.

Rhodes noted that the Massillon community has raised $61,000 for the three families, and two service organizations have guaranteed scholarships for the children.

"While the Massillon community support is commendable and heartwarming, the fact is that families of firefighters and policemen killed in action should not have to rely on community donations," Rhodes said.

He said current law provides only $160 a month for widows plus $55 a month per child. He said a bill he sent to the legislature last May would allow the widow to draw full pay until the date her husband would have retired, then the full pension.

The bill has remained in committee since it was introduced.

"Today, I ask the General Assembly to delay no more," Rhodes said. "This legislation should be passed as soon as possible."

Rhodes also endorsed the petition sent by the Massillon residents. The preambles of the petitions call for strict enforcement of criminal laws and severe punishment of criminals.

Original copies of the petitions were sent to President Ford. Copies were sent to Rhodes, the Ohio congressional delegation, legislators and the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I support every word of their petition, and if the original had been submitted to me, would have signed it myself," Rhodes said.

"It is unthinkable and unconscionable that the lives of three vital young public servants should be sacrificed because of the actions of the criminal element of our society," he said.

Bloody Battles Marked Ohio Role In Revolutionary War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohioans who will help the nation celebrate its bicentennial must remember that the Buckeye State was just a forested wilderness during the American Revolution, designated only as "the Ohio country."

Nevertheless, it too was British property to be won for independence. If fighting was not on as grand a scale as in the East, there were indeed bloody battles.

In addition, Ohio land provided what in many cases was the only compensation a Revolutionary soldier received for his service. Early in the Revolution, Congress had passed a GI bill promising officers and men of the Continental Army a share of the new territories which it hoped would be won in the war.

The struggle for the Ohio country during the Revolution was essentially a renewal of the conflict between the Indians, supported by the British, and frontiersmen, that had begun in the French and Indian War. It had been reopened by Chief Pontiac in 1763 and after some years of quiet had entered a new phase with Lord Dunmore's War of 1774.

During the latter part of 1775 and the early months of 1776 the Ohio Indians were inactive and did not take sides in the growing British-American conflict. They were, however, more friendly to the forces of King George III.

Sir Guy Carleton, governor of Canada, and Gen. Henry Hamilton, commander at Detroit, known as the "hair buyer" for the price he put on American scalps, did all they could to stir up the tribes to join the British side. They met with considerable success as future events would show.

State Office . . .

The focus of the debate, the brownish-gray tower, was clearly visible from north window of the Statehouse committee room as the debate dragged on.

"It's time for some very important surgical work to solve the problem," Meshel finally decided. The board then turned to other matters.

Controllers pared a request by the Personnel Board of Review from $350,000 to $100,000. The board, which handles state employee job disputes, requested the money to help clear a backlog of appeals resulting from new civil service classification which took effect at the first of the year.

The $100,000 grant cut the state emergency purposes fund to $152,000 for the balance of the fiscal year (to July).

Board members waived competitive bidding, allowing the Ohio House Development Board to pay a Cincinnati law firm $20,000 to seek judicial review by the Ohio Supreme Court of the state housing law. The firm of Peck, Shaffer & Williams will ask the court whether it is legal for the state to issue revenue bonds to provide loans for low and middle income housing.

In other action, the board:

—Refused to allow the adjutant general to transfer $315,000 from his disaster relief fund for the construction of Hamilton Armory in Butler County. Legislators said the disaster surplus money—about $500,000 in all—should be funneled into the state General Revenue Fund even though $865,000 in available federal funds for the armory will probably be lost.

—Approved a mental health contract with Homemakers International Co. for a licensed practical nursing service at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

—Authorized the Department of Natural Resources to spend $42,600 to buy nearly 40 acres from private owners in Ross County for the Great Seal State Park.

—Deferred action on construction money requests from Ohio State, Ohio University and Miami University, pending a resolution of the Rhodes request for the $10 million transfer.

Override Of President's Veto Of HEW-Labor Billed Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats will try to override President Ford's veto of a $45-billion labor-health, education and welfare bill that would provide funds to numerous social programs, including the remnants of President Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty program.

Ford vetoed the bill on Dec. 19, saying it would exceed his budget by nearly $1 billion and claiming the measure would "add significantly to the already burdensome federal deficits."

The House override vote today was regarded as a major test of Democratic ability to overcome Ford's insistence on tighter budgets.

Democratic strategists predicted Monday they would need 30 Republican votes in order to get the two-thirds needed to override the veto.

Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, a Democratic deputy whip and an education subcommittee chairman, said overriding Ford's veto on the bill was "critical."

As approved by Congress, the bill contains increases over Ford's budget of $496 million for the National Institutes of Health, $112 million for human development programs and $131.7 million for the Community Services Administration, which administers much of what is left of the federal antipoverty programs passed during the Johnson administration.

The bill, which funds a variety of programs for children, the elderly and the handicapped as well as health research, would cover a 15-month period that began last July 1.

"The bill provides little more than the amounts needed to keep pace with inflation," Brademas said, contending the measure is only 2.6 per cent above the Ford budget recommendations.

Democrats have contended the total spending in the bill is in line with budget guidelines Congress adopted under its new spending control procedures.

But Ford, in vetoing the bill, said, "What this argument does not say is that the resolution, which expresses the Congress' view of appropriate budget restraint, expresses a $50-billion or 15 per cent, increase in federal spending in one year. Such an increase is not appropriate budget restraint."

2 Chillicothe Youths Charged With Safecracking

Two Route 1, Chillicothe youths were arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputy Bill Huffman, Monday for safe cracking and grand theft.

The two boys, age 15 and 17, took the money from a safe at the Gold Cliff Recreation Park Office.

Ben Briner reported the theft to authorities.

Sheriff's Department recovered $325 of the money taken.

Shot Fired At Car, Woman Says

Circleville Police could locate no witnesses to corroborate Darlene Sowers' complaint that she was shot at while driving on the Lancaster Pike shortly before 11:30 a.m. Monday.

Ms. Sowers, 223 N. Washington St., reported to police that an unknown person in the parking lot of the Borden Burger fired a weapon at her car.

Ptl. John Bost and Ron Thompson investigated the complaint, but apparently could locate no one who either heard the shot or saw the assailant.

Loss in the weekend burglary of the Nicholas Dr. school is estimated at over $500 by school officials.

Items taken in the break-in included a set of Math Explora tapes valued at $280, a set of social studies tapes and filmstrips valued at $44.95, a set of Ohio history slides owned by the Ohio Historical Society valued at $35, two films owned by the high school audio visual department valued at $128.50, three staplers valued at $13.50, and other items valued at $10.

Linda Timmons, Stoutsville, told police that she lost her purse in the Game Machine, Lancaster Pike, Sunday.

The purse, brown suede leather, contained $20 in cash, driver's license, and social security card.

City Workers Face Dismissal

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — Youngstown Mayor Jack Hunter says dismissal notices have been mailed to about 75 city workers who stayed off the job Monday in a sick-call work stoppage.

City officials said most of the 1,200 union members working for the city ignored picket lines, and the strike had little effect on city operations.

The picket lines were set up by family members and friends of the striking workers in the airport, street and water departments. A law department spokesman said workers who refused to cross picket lines of Community Workers Association Local 14 would be docked one day's pay.

Detroit is the largest city in the country to undergo court-ordered desegregation, with about 10 per cent of the 247,000 pupils to be bused under the plan. The school system is 75 per cent black.

Many buses were only half-full as they arrived at elementary schools Monday. More than 40,000 elementary pupils were absent.

Supporters of the city's largest antibusing groups kept their children home Monday in an indefinite "yellow flu" boycott. There were no incidents at the schools and only three small demonstrations against the integration program.

School Supt. Arthur Jefferson estimated absenteeism was 32.4 per cent of the city's 127,000 elementary pupils, up from a normal rate of 12.5 per cent.

Foremen Complete Courses

Two employees of USS Chemicals, Circleville, completed Unit II of Wittenberg University's Management Development Program Friday.

They are Everett Keller, 56 Evergreen Ave., shift foreman, and Kenneth R. Welsh, 222 Brinks Drive, foreman.

During the past 24 years more than 900 different companies representing a wide variety of industrial, commercial and medical concerns have released over 16,000 supervisors from their normal responsibilities and sponsored their participation in the management program.

Police Hold Daytonians

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Two Dayton, Ohio brothers, one of them wounded, today remained in custody charged with the early Monday attempted robbery of the Bonanza Sirolo restaurant, Middletown police said.

Larry Milner, 26, was treated for a shoulder gunshot wound and charged with pointing a sawed-off shotgun at Lt. Ernest Howard and Patrolman Garry Watson.

His brother, Ronald Milner, 21, was held for aggravated robbery and complicity to felonious assault.

Police said they opened fire at Larry Milner when he pointed a weapon at them as they responded to a burglar alarm. Ronald Milner was treated for a head wound. Police said he was struck on the head by an officer while attempting to escape from the restaurant.

Three employees were held at gunpoint during the attempted robbery, police said. An undetermined amount of cash was recovered, police said.

Benefits Urged For Police Widows

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has called on the General Assembly to enact legislation allowing survivors' benefits to the widows and children of slain peace officers.

Rhodes issued the statement as he received petitions from some 4,000 Massillon citizens calling for a crack-down on organized crime.

The petitions were prompted by the deaths of three firemen in a restaurant explosion having links to organized crime. The firemen left three widows and seven children.

Rhodes noted that the Massillon community has raised $61,000 for the three families, and two service organizations have guaranteed scholarships for the children.

"While the Massillon community support is commendable and heartwarming, the fact is that families of firefighters and policemen killed in action should not have to rely on community donations," Rhodes said.

He said current law provides only $160 a month for widows plus $55 a month per child. He said a bill he sent to the legislature last May would allow the widow to draw full pay until the date her husband would have retired, then the full pension.

The bill has remained in committee since it was introduced.

"Today, I ask the General Assembly to delay no more," Rhodes said. "This legislation should be passed as soon as possible."

Rhodes also endorsed the petition sent by the Massillon residents. The preambles of the petitions call for strict enforcement of criminal laws and severe punishment of criminals.

Original copies of the petitions were sent to President Ford. Copies were sent to Rhodes, the Ohio congressional delegation, legislators and the U.S. Supreme Court.

"I support every word of their petition, and if the original had been submitted to me, would have signed it myself," Rhodes said.

"It is unthinkable and unconscionable that the lives of three vital young public servants should be sacrificed because of the actions of the criminal element of our society," he said.

Bloody Battles Marked Ohio Role In Revolutionary War

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohioans who will help the nation celebrate its bicentennial must remember that the Buckeye State was just a forested wilderness during the American Revolution, designated only as "the Ohio country."

Nevertheless, it too was British property to be won for independence. If fighting was not on as grand a scale as in the East, there were indeed bloody battles.

In addition, Ohio land provided what in many cases was the only compensation a Revolutionary soldier received for his service. Early in the Revolution, Congress had passed a GI bill promising officers and men of the Continental Army a share of the new territories which it hoped would be won in the war.

The struggle for the Ohio country during the Revolution was essentially a renewal of the conflict between the Indians, supported by the British, and frontiersmen, that had begun in the French and Indian War. It had been reopened by Chief Pontiac in 1763 and after some years of quiet had entered a new phase with Lord Dunmore's War of 1774.

During the latter part of 1775 and the early months of 1776 the Ohio Indians were inactive and did not take sides in the growing British-American conflict. They were, however, more friendly to the forces of King George III.

Sir Guy Carlton, governor of Canada, and Gen. Henry Hamilton, commander at Detroit, known as the "hair buyer" for the price he put on American scalps, did all they could to stir up the tribes to join the British side. They met with considerable success as future events would show.

The focus of the debate, the brownish-gray tower, was clearly visible from north window of the Statehouse committee room as the debate dragged on.

"It's time for some very important surgical work to solve the problem," Mesheh finally decided. The board then turned to other matters.

Controllers pared a request by the Personnel Board of Review from $350,000 to $100,000. The board, which handles state employee job disputes, requested the money to help clear a backlog of appeals resulting from new civil service classification which took effect at the first of the year.

The $100,000 grant cut the state emergency purposes fund to $152,000 for the balance of the fiscal year (to July).

Board members waived competitive bidding, allowing the Ohio House Development Board to pay a Cincinnati law firm $20,000 to seek judicial review by the Ohio Supreme Court of the state housing law. The firm of Peck, Shaffer & Williams will ask the court whether it is legal for the state to issue revenue bonds to provide loans for low and middle income housing.

In other action, the board:

—Refused to allow the adjutant general to transfer $315,000 from his disaster relief fund for the construction of Hamilton Armory in Butler County. Legislators said the disaster surplus money—about $500,000 in all—should be funneled into the state General Revenue Fund even though $865,000 in available federal funds for the armory will probably be lost.

—Approved a mental health contract with Homemakers International Co. for a licensed practical nursing service at Longview State Hospital in Cincinnati.

—Authorized the Department of Natural Resources to spend $42,600 to buy nearly 40 acres from private owners in Ross County for the Great Seal State Park.

—Deferred action on construction money requests from Ohio State, Ohio University and Miami University, pending a resolution of the Rhodes request for the $10 million transfer.

Override Of President's Veto Of HEW-Labor Billed Planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats will try to override President Ford's veto of a $45-billion labor-health, education and welfare bill that would provide funds to numerous social programs, including the remnants of President Lyndon Johnson's war on poverty program.

Ford vetoed the bill on Dec. 19, saying it would exceed his budget by nearly $1 billion and claiming the measure would "add significantly to the already burdensome federal deficits."

The House override vote today was regarded as a major test of Democratic ability to overcome Ford's insistence on tighter budgets.

Democratic strategists predicted Monday they would need 30 Republican votes in order to get the two-thirds needed to override the veto.

Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, a Democratic deputy whip and an education subcommittee chairman, said overriding Ford's veto on the bill was "critical."

As approved by Congress, the bill contains increases over Ford's budget of $496 million for the National Institutes of Health, $112 million for human development programs and $131.7 million for the Community Services Administration, which administers much of what is left of the federal antipoverty programs passed during the Johnson administration.

The bill, which funds a variety of programs for children, the elderly and the handicapped as well as health research, would cover a 15-month period that began last July 1.

"The bill provides little more than the amounts needed to keep pace with inflation," Brademas said, contending the measure is only 2.6 per cent above the Ford budget recommendations.

Democrats have contended the total spending in the bill is in line with budget guidelines Congress adopted under its new spending control procedures.

But Ford, in vetoing the bill, said, "What this argument does not say is that the resolution, which expresses the Congress' view of appropriate budget restraint, expresses a $50-billion or 15 per cent, increase in federal spending in one year. Such an increase is not appropriate budget restraint."

2 Chillicothe Youths Charged With Safecracking

Two Route 1, Chillicothe youths were arrested by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputy Bill Huffman, Monday for safe cracking and grand theft.

The two boys, age 15 and 17, took the money from a safe at the Gold Cliff Recreation Park Office.

Ben Briner reported the theft to authorities.

Sheriff's Department recovered $325 of the money taken.

Shot Fired At Car, Woman Says

Circleville Police could locate no witnesses to corroborate Darlene Sowers' complaint that she was shot at while driving on the Lancaster Pike shortly before 11:30 a.m. Monday.

Ms. Sowers, 223 N. Washington St., reported to police that an unknown person in the parking lot of the Borden Burger fired a weapon at her car.

Pt. John Bost and Ron Thompson investigated the complaint, but apparently could locate no one who either heard the shot or saw the assailant.

Loss in the weekend burglary of the Nicholas Dr. school is estimated at over $500 by school officials.

Items taken in the break-in included a set of Math Explora tapes valued at $280, a set of social studies tapes and filmstrips valued at $44.95, a set of Ohio history slides owned by the Ohio Historical Society valued at $35, two films owned by the high school audio visual department valued at $128.50, three staplers valued at $13.50, and other items valued at $10.

Linda Timmons, Stouffville, told police that she lost her purse in the Game Machine, Lancaster Pike, Sunday.

The purse, brown suede leather, contained $20 in cash, driver's license, and social security card.

City Workers Face Dismissal

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — Youngstown Mayor Jack Hunter says dismissal notices have been mailed to about 75 city workers who stayed off the job Monday in a sick-call work stoppage.

City officials said most of the 1,200 union members working for the city ignored picket lines, and the strike had little effect on city operations.

The picket lines were set up by family members and friends of the striking workers in the airport, street and water departments. A law department spokesman said workers who refused to cross picket lines of Community Workers Association Local 14 would be docked one day's pay.
